"What! Are you still saying the same things, Socrates, that I heard from you so long ago?" "Yes," said Socrates, "and what is more wonderful, I am not only saying the same things, but am saying them on the same subjects."

The pretty Texas co-ed bandit is now accused of arson, but it is understood she is good to her aged mother.

The Xmas tree burns like tinder—A match, candle—and a cinder! If on the safe side you would be, Get an asbestos Christmas tree, And then the firemen can stay, At home, like you, on Christmas day.

Maj. Hesse draws fresh inspiration from Mother Goose in a stringent police order against mendicants and unlicensed cures.

"Hark, hark, the dogs do bark, The beggars have come 'n town."

Things have come to a pretty pass in this town if a hungry panhandler is permitted to annoy the rich boot-legger with a request for a small Christmas gratuity.

It begins to look as though Frank L. Smith could Sam Insull a rebuke. As the cowboy said when they threw him out of the dance hall the third time, "I know what's the matter—they don't want me in there."

The Southern railway, if ousted from the historic site on the Avenue where in the old days stood the ornate building of the Republicans, and later, the Pension bureau, can easily finance the construction of another home, but what provision are the authorities making for housing the Center market rats when their home is torn down? Herbert Hoover and the S. P. C. A. ought to look into this.

Entirely too little attention is being paid nowadays to the rights and privileges of dumb creatures. Here's Los Angeles deciding that ladies attempting the Catalina island swim must be clothed in something more than a seraphic smile and a shingle bob. The poor fish!

Daddy Browning—the sugar and cream for Peaches—abandons his charitable intention to give away 1,000 Christmas suits when Mary Spas presents him with one.

The graphic story of the hold-up of an Iowa bank by a couple of bandits comes as gratifying confirmation of recent dispatches announcing a return to solvency of the fiscal institutions of that State, and it must be admitted that the account of the flight of the robbers across the ice of the Missouri river shows what resourceful men can do when they want to with frozen assets.

Louis Ludlow is elected vice president of the Press club. An Indiana man, like water, finds his own level.

This new invisible ray which enables one to see in the dark is regarded as old stuff in well-informed feline circles.

Advocates of a fighting navy commensurate with the wealth and honor of the Republic needn't get so excited over the deplorable condition of the fleet—our smart diplomats can easily call a disarmament conference and trick England into tearing up another blueprint.

There's something lacking in the dispatch about that coast guard banquet at Elizabeth City, N. C.—It doesn't say that a pleasant time was had by all.

And here's the national guard asking that quarters be assigned to it in the "old" Pension Office! A short memory makes ancient history.

An attempt was made to rob Queen Marie of her jewels while she was in America but the poor thief couldn't get near enough to her on account of the hordes of people who were trying to give her something.

Advocates of farm relief are like old Socrates in one respect—they're "saying the same things on the same subject"—but this doesn't make them philosophers by a muscle Shauls dam site.

The jury in the oil case decides to sleep on it after obtaining the final instructions from the Judge—

"I charge you by the law, Whereof you are a well deserving pillar, Proceed to judgment."

When Senator Smoot says he doesn't want any tax reduction any further bleats by the Hon. Pat Harrison may be regarded as wholly academic.

The Senate throws out Gen. Andrews' $500,000 secret fund for the snafus and snafus because it isn't authorized by law, but what's that got to do with anything now—days? If that argument were sound it'd throw out the whole Antislavery league.

RIGHTS OF MANKIND, U.S. BISHOPS HOLD, DEFIED BY MEXICO

Joint Catholic Pastoral Says Aim Is to End All Religion.

ATTACKS ON CHURCH CALLED PROPAGANDA

American and Mexican Constitutions Compared in Episcopate's Appeal.

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—The Catholic Episcopate of the United States today issued a pastoral letter which declared that the present troubled condition in Mexico is caused by the defiance of the fundamental principles of liberty as they are understood in the United States. This is the first collective letter of the bishops since 1919 and its purpose, it was stated in authoritative circles, was not to revive the religious controversy but to set it at rest forever.

The bishops state that their reason for speaking on the Mexican situation is that the Mexican government has itself appealed to the American public, the pastoral saying: "The government of Mexico can not therefore object, under such circumstances, if the case it has thus presented for judgment be considered in the light of American principles as embodied in our fundamental laws; nor, since it appeals for the sympathy of Christians, if Christian principles be given due weight in considering its acts; nor, since it claims great zeal for the advancement of education, if the statement it has presented in support of its pleading be submitted to the test of history. These are the things we purpose to do, so that not only will our own people be fully informed of the interests at stake but that the Mexican people may not be without benefit of advocate before the court to which their rulers have actually but mistakenly appealed."

Church's Work in Mexico. Recounting the work and influence of the Catholic Church in Mexico over a score of years the pastoral letter, speaking for the church, says: "Show me one good thing in Mexico I did not give you. Show me one genius for whom I was not responsible. Show me one step toward the light that I did not help you take. Take out of your country all that I put in it, and see what remains."

The bishops state the letter is no appeal for political intervention or action of any sort, declaring that it "is no interposition of our influence either as bishops or as citizens to reach those who possess political power anywhere on earth, and least of all in our own country to the end that they should intervene with armed force in the internal affairs of Mexico for the protection of the Church. Our duty is done, when by telling the story, defending the truth and emphasizing the principles, we sound a warning to Christian civilization that its foundations are again being attacked and undermined."

Ideals of Liberty.

The first part of the pastoral takes up the respective ideals of civil and religious liberty held by Americans and Mexicans. It states: "The difference between the conception of civil and religious freedom upheld by the American Constitution and that of the makers and defenders of the present constitution of Mexico will be best understood by contrasting the two instruments. This will show that, only by slurring over or concealing the actual facts of the case can it be made to appear that the two are identical."

Roumanians Repulse Soviet Gun Runners

Bucharest, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—An attempt to send a boatload of arms and ammunition across the Dniester river by boatmen to a point near Tighina has been frustrated after a spirited fight, the authorities here are informed, by Roumanian frontier guards. The Roumanians, knowing the time for the arrival of the boat, ambushed the soviet party, who responded to the demand for surrender with a volley. A sharp exchange of fire took place between the Roumanians and bolsheviks. The latter, under cover of a heavy mist and protected by machine-gun fire of soviet guards on the opposite bank of the river, escaped. There were no casualties on the Roumanian side.

Marx Must Resign, Socialists Decide

Berlin, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—An incipient political crisis arising from the socialists' opposition to the government in connection with supposed reactionary elements of the Reichwehr is likely to come to a head immediately. At a meeting of the socialist party today a resolution was adopted that unless the government resigns tomorrow, the party will present a motion of nonconfidence. Another resolution was adopted in favor of entering a coalition comprising the socialists, democrats, centrists, German people's party, and Bavarian people's party, on condition that the government resign.

INVISIBLE RAY ENABLES MEN TO SEE IN DARK

Planes and Military Moves Made Visible at Night by British Discovery.

CAN PIERCE EVEN FOGS

London, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Seeing in total darkness by means of an invisible ray is declared by the Daily Mail to have been demonstrated as feasible through an invention of John L. Baird, a British scientist. His discoveries in television have aroused great interest in the past year. Mr. Baird is quoted as saying that his achievement has been accomplished with his television by isolating and then employing rays which are outside the visible spectrum.

The human eye is unable to see these rays, but the sensitive electric eye of his apparatus selects them readily. The Mail's representative describes how he sat in total darkness and saw the complete outlines of a colleague, also in the dark at a distance, projected upon a screen by Baird's "searchlight."

Mr. Baird asserts that the invisible ray can be focused and flashed through lenses like ordinary searchlights, but that it is more penetrative and can be thrown farther than any visible ray, and also can pierce fog more readily. It might, therefore, be of great significance in aiding tanks, ships and airplanes in the fog.

Capt. O. G. Hutchinson, who is associated with Mr. Baird, says it is impossible to estimate the importance of this invention in warfare. It would be possible to follow an enemy's movements in darkness, it would disclose the position of airplanes at night, and enable those employing the ray to watch and approach without the pilot's knowledge.

"Darkness," said Capt. Hutchinson, "will no longer give security as a cloak for military operations."

Mexico May Extend Time for Oil Titles

Mexico City, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—It is reported, but without official confirmation, that the Mexican government is considering issuing a decree extending for six months the time in which foreign oil companies may apply for ratification of land titles under the new petroleum and alien land laws. The limit, as now fixed by the laws, is December 31.

Canada's First Envoy In City Next Month

Ottawa, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Vincent Massey, Canada's first Minister to the United States, is expected to begin his duties in Washington late in January. Mr. Massey has been in Ottawa for several days, arranging with the government details for the Washington legation.

Mary Spas Seeks $500,000 In Suit Against Browning

Mental Anguish and Assault Attempt Charged by Girl Whose Adoption Was Annulled—He Says Court Cases Prevent His Charity Project.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 15.—Mary Louise Spas, his first Cinderella, has handed her Christmas greetings to Edward W. Browning in the guise of a $500,000 damage suit, it was learned today.

With "Daddy" Browning facing trial of one action on January 24, at Carmel, N. Y., his separation suit against his second Cinderella, "Peaches" Keenan Browning, Mary Spas has piled additional gloom upon the realtor's Christmas.

Her process server entered "Daddy's" office, 153 West Seventy-second street, at 11 o'clock last Saturday morning. It has been learned.

"I'd like to show Mr. Browning some nice new Christmas cards," he informed the faithful John Gorman, secretary.

He waited an hour and then Browning came out to see his cards. "Speaking of Christmas sentiments," said the young man, producing a blue-backed document, "look at this one!"

It was the summons and complaint of Mary Spas, in which the girl he

BILL FOR PURCHASE OF MALL TRIANGLE PASSED BY SENATE

Smoot Measure Places $25,000,000 Limit on Cost of Land.

EXTENSION INDICATED AT HEARING IN HOUSE

Mellon Urges Acquisition of Southern Railway Building and More Tracts.

The Smoot bill authorizing the acquisition of all property in the so-called Pennsylvania avenue-Mall triangle at a cost not to exceed $25,000,000 was passed by the Senate yesterday and at a hearing of the House public buildings and grounds committee it was indicated that there not only will be no opposition to the measure there but that it will be enlarged in scope.

Expressions at the hearing, at which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon appeared, favored, including the Southern Railway building and several squares adjacent to the Mall between the Capitol and Sixth street.

In the Senate the bill was passed without a record vote, Senator Smoot calling it shortly after the Senate had met. Senators Norris, of Nebraska; King, of Utah, and Coughlin, of Michigan, questioned the advisability of passing it at this time. It would be better to wait until the government had need for the property, they said.

Senator Smoot pointed out, however, that the plan to acquire it now is to avoid increased costs which would be bound to come with the government's building program on properties already owned or which are to be acquired under authority granted at the last session.

Urges Increase in Taxes. In the House committee, Representative Underhill, of Massachusetts, sponsor of a bill similar to the Smoot measure, declared that the District commissioners should increase the taxes of property holders on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue to such an extent that the smaller structures would have to be abandoned.

Representative Oliver, of New York, proposed that the Southern railway building be included, and Mr. Underhill, agreed with him. The railway building, declared Mr. Oliver, is one of the worst looking on the avenue. It is a "magnificent box," he said.

Secretary Mellon said he thought it desirable to acquire this property, as well as the pieces adjacent to the Mall between the Capitol and Sixth street, and on one of which it is proposed to relocate the Botanic gardens.

$3,000,000 Higher Now. Mr. Underhill pointed out that when he first introduced his bill several years ago the property now sought, excluding the Southern railway building, could be had for $2,000,000.

Woman Yule Shopper Dies in 9-Floor Leap

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—While her sister-in-law waited in a department store across the street to continue a Christmas shopping trip, Mrs. H. A. Slagle, of Kansas City, Mo., leaped to her death from a ninth-story window of the Onondaga hotel here today.

She had given her address as Lewistown, Pa., but it was learned tonight that her home was in Kansas City.

Mrs. Slagle had been visiting relatives here. No motive could be assigned for her act.

REPUBLICANS JOIN FIGHT TO BAR SMITH IN PRESENT SESSION

Fear Battle on Illinois Appointment Would Wreck Program.

WATSON MAKES PLEA WARNING CANDIDATES

Senator-Elect Holds Failure to Take Seat Now Would Prejudice Case.

(By the Associated Press.)

Earnest efforts were put forward yesterday by Republican leaders to prevent the appointment of Senator-elect Frank L. Smith (Republican), Illinois, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator McKinley.

Fear that his appointment would upset their whole legislative program by immediately provoking a fight over excessive campaign expenditures, which they hoped to defer until the next Congress, led some majority chieftains to even suggest a coalition between Republicans and Democrats to prevent Smith from taking the oath if he were given the appointment.

If such a plan were carried out, Mr. Smith would be stopped virtually at the door of the Senate with no debate on either side. He would appear again on March 4 by right of his election to the Seventieth Congress, and the fight over his seating would be put off until the first session of that Congress.

The leaders also are afraid that prolonged debate over Smith's qualifications would force a special session of Congress, which they wish to avoid.

Smith Asked to Decline.

Falling to commit Gov. Small of Illinois against appointing Smith, they centered their efforts toward attempting to persuade the latter not to accept the appointment if it were offered.

Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, called Mr. Smith over the long-distance telephone and pleaded with him not to come to Washington as Mr. McKinley's successor and warned that if he did he probably would be unseated.

Smith was reported to have replied that his case never had been presented to the Senate and he wished to plead his cause. He also said to have countered with the argument that if Gov. Small did not appoint him in view of his position as the senator-elect, his case would be injured. Meanwhile, Gov. Small has declined to either deny or confirm repeated reports that he plans to name Mr. Smith.

Democratic senators have adopted a watchful-waiting attitude, but most of them are known to favor barring Smith because of the disclosures of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee.

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, has a resolution prepared to offer when Smith appears to take the oath, directing him to step aside until the Reed committee advises the Senate of a course to pursue.

While leaders were conducting the private negotiations over the Smith nomination, the Senate was discussing the Nicaraguan liberal army is advancing.

NICARAGUAN LIBERAL ARMY IS ADVANCING

Troops Move on the Entire Front in the Direction of Managua, Capital.

San Salvador, Salvador, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Advices received here from Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, the seat of the liberal government set up by former Vice President Juan Sacasa, say that liberal forces have begun an advance along the entire front.

The advances state that an insurgent column has left the Atlantic coast and is advancing on the department of Matagalpa, in the direction of Managua which is the seat of the conservative government of President Adolfo Diaz.

A detachment of government troops was reported to have been defeated in the department of Nuevo Segovia, resulting in the capture of many prisoners by the rebels as well as a quantity of war material.

The reports state that the liberal forces are advancing into the interior and are dominating the entrance to the town of Jinotega. Other columns are reported to have begun an advance on Leon and Chinandega.

R. E. Byrd Awarded Elisha K. Kane Medal

Philadelphia, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Lieut. Comdr. Richard E. Byrd, the first man to fly to the north pole, received the Elisha K. Kane medal of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia tonight at a testimonial dinner.

Many prominent figures in naval, aeronautic and scientific circles were present, among them Mrs. Marie Angheto Peary Stafford, daughter of Admiral Peary; Capt. Robert Bartlett, Admiral Peary's skipper, and Capt. W. L. Littlefield, U. S. N., who represented the United States Navy. Pilot Floyd Bennett, companion of Byrd on his polar flight, was unable to be present.

JURY IN OIL CASE LOCKED UP AFTER 7 HOURS OF DEBATE; TO REPORT AT 10 A. M. TODAY

Vocal Harmony Marks Oil Verdict Deliberations

Barber Shop Chords Ring Out as Arbiters Wrestle With Evidence—Cigarettes for Fall and Solitaire for Doheny Pass Waiting Hours.

From out of the juryroom at the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial last night came—not the noise of battle nor the sound of passionate pleading, but the music of vocal harmony. The young jurors were singing.

The jury began harmonizing about 7 o'clock, just after dinner. The sound of their voices floated down to the pressroom on the floor below, and a reporter set out to investigate. He got near enough to the juryroom to identify the rollicking lines of "Bye, Bye Blackbird."

"Well, that sounds good to me," said a defense partisan when he heard about the singing. "Those fellows could hardly sing if they were going to convict."

"I don't know about that," said another man who was keeping the vigil. "Our doughboys used to sing when they went to the front to die, didn't they? Remember what a famous jurist once said—'You can never tell what a woman or a jury will do.'"

The jurors went to their prisonlike room just above the court room at 2:30 o'clock. The court room was crowded at that time, and it remained crowded for several hours afterward. It was not until Justice Hoehling announced that he was going to dinner and would not return until 8 o'clock that there was any general dispersal. The better part of the crowd left then, but at 8 o'clock the court room and the corridors were again well filled. The jurors, who have been going out to a hotel for dinner, were kept in their room and served there.

Former Secretary Albert B. Fall, co-defendant with Edward L. Doheny in the trial, spent most of his time pacing up and down the corridor. Always, it seemed, he was smoking a cigarette. Mr. Doheny sat in the court room for several hours during the afternoon, but last night he whiled away the hours in an anteroom playing solitaire. His son, Edward L. Doheny, Jr., played a rubber of bridge with newspaper men.

Women were predominant in the court room crowd. Some of them passed the time solving crossword puzzles. The lawyers in the case, especially Frank J. Hogan and Wilton Lambert, were surrounded by surging groups.

FREEZE FAILS TO SAVE SNOW FOR SLEDDING

Thermometer Goes to 27 at 10 P. M. and Continues to Drop During Night.

FRESH WINDS PREDICTED

Freezing temperatures came to Washington too late yesterday to save for the benefit of sledding children and the detriment of motorists and the city's traffic generally the short-lived snow which fell. Most of the snow melted as fast as it fell and today will be fair and slightly colder, the weather bureau forecast last night.

Tomorrow there will be increasing cloudiness. The westerly winds, which will ride the freezing mercury, will freshen the forecast said. The lowest official temperature yesterday was 27 degrees, recorded at 10 o'clock last night, but at that time the thermometer still was falling. The highest temperature recorded in the weather bureau's report yesterday was 33 degrees at midnight Wednesday.

The same forecast made for the District was made also for Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware. Virginia was promised rising temperature tomorrow.

Washington and the surrounding country, however, was not alone in its prospect of shivering a bit, for, according to Associated Press dispatches from other cities, most of the country west of the Appalachians, which has been cold for the last three days, will be cold again today, with zero weather registered in many places. The slight rise promised last night would not do more than raise the temperature above the zero mark, and in many places another 24 hours will elapse before communities will be relieved from the cold, which has been 25 degrees below normal. Winter's first concentrated attack on the Rocky Mountain region also was reported in Associated Press dispatches from Denver as having begun to ease off with slowly rising temperatures.

HEART BEATS REVEAL GUILT OF SUSPECTS

Instructor at the New York University Demonstrates Electrical Device.

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—A modern electrical "third degree" led to the detection of "robbers" at a meeting of the New York electrical society tonight. Heart thumps of "thieves" who "robbed" rooms of the society's building were detected by new electrical apparatus demonstrated by Dr. A. P. Link, psychology instructor at New York university.

Individuals were sent from the office with sealed instructions which required one of the individuals to commit a "robbery" in another room. On the return of the group, Dr. Link subjected all three of them, guilty and innocent, to the new "third degree." While innocent parties failed to betray any emotion, the audience heard the heart thumps of the "criminal" through an electrical stethoscope while he was examined.

Efforts of members of the audience to lie or conceal the truth were frustrated by an apparatus that showed lowered electrical resistance of the skin of the subject when telling a falsehood or hiding the truth. A moving spot of light shot across a screen when the person under test showed any excitement.

Defendants and Families Are Present in Court Until 10 o'Clock.

JURORS, AFTER DINING, PASS TIME SINGING

Hoehling Instructions Please Both Sides, Who Take No Exception.

NO SPLIT VERDICT CAN BE RETURNED, JUDGE SAYS

Attendants Are Held Tense by Summaries; Mrs. Fall and Daughter Weep.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The jury which has in its care the fate of Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny, charged with criminal conspiracy in connection with the naval oil leases, was locked up shortly after 10 o'clock last night after more than seven hours of deliberation. Justice Hoehling remained in chambers until that hour and then sent word that court would recess until 10 o'clock this morning.

Both the defendants as well as members of their families and many of those who have been spectators throughout the trial remained in the court room or in the corridors during the evening. Mrs. Doheny, wife of Edward L. Doheny, Jr., is suffering from a heavy cold and was not present.

Counsel for the government and for the defense were requested to come to the judge's chambers shortly after 8 o'clock and this led to the belief that the jury had asked for instructions. It developed, however, that the judge merely wanted to have a friendly chat with the counsel in the case.

Jurors, After Dinner, Sing. Meanwhile the jurymen, after deliberating three hours, asked for dinner and it was served to them in the jury room. Later the strains of song drifted down from the jury room and led to the belief that agreement might be in sight. But after stretching their legs in a walk through the upper corridors, they went back to the jury room and nothing more was heard until time came for them to be locked up for the night.

It was made clear by Justice Hoehling in his charge to the jury, concluded at 2:30 in the afternoon, that there can be only one of two verdicts, guilty or not guilty, and that the verdict will apply to both defendants. In other words there can not be a split verdict.

Justice Hoehling turned the case over to the jury at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon with the following concluding statement:

"Now, gentlemen, the case passes out of my hands to you as trial jurors must determine it."

Justice Hoehling's charge to the jury, characterized by counsel on both sides as a model of fairness, was the last act so far in the courtroom drama which has been unfolded day by day since November 22. It lasted 1 hour and 20 minutes and the twelve men in the jury box as well as every spectator in the crowded little courtroom followed every word that came from the lips of the presiding judge. Clearly enunciated sentences from the bench were followed all the more easily because of the silence that pervaded every corner of the room.

Edward L. Doheny pressed his right ear forward with his hand to catch every word and remained in this posture throughout. Albert B. Fall sat comfortably at ease, apparently gratified that his case was at last being fairly stated to his countrymen, without fear, favor or prejudice. Counsel for the government and for the defense sat like immovable images absorbed in attention.

Families are Present. Behind the benches reserved for counsel and the press and intermingled with the privileged spectators were members of the Fall and Doheny families, including Mrs. Fall and her daughter, Mrs. Chase, both of whom had wept silently during the morning hour when Mark B. Thompson, of counsel for Fall, had addressed the jury briefly as a friend from the West and an intimate associate as well as counsel of the former Secretary of the Interior. Mrs. Fall and her daughter apparently were able to withstand the shocks that came from the government's prosecutors and they appeared unmoved through the summing-up arguments of Frank J. Hogan, of Doheny's counsel. But something about the personal character of Thompson's appeal to the jury proved too much for them.

The oratorical fireworks that punctuated the morning arguments added emphasis to the calm and dispassionate atmosphere of the early afternoon when Justice Hoehling was reading his charge. And the softly falling snowflakes seen through the courtroom window added to the picture. Eyes from every angle turned to the twelve

MINNESOTA LAWYER GETS TREASURY POST

Carl Schuneman Is Appointed Assistant Secretary to Succeed McKenzie Moss.

Carl Schuneman, Minnesota lawyer and head of Schuneman, Mannerheimer & Evans department store, St. Paul, has been named Assistant Secretary of the Treasury to succeed Judge McKenzie Moss, appointed last May to the Court of Claims, it was announced last night by Senator Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota.

Schuneman, a personal friend of the senator, will probably take over his new duties the first of the year. It was indicated. He will be placed in direct charge of the internal revenue bureau, and the supervising architect's and chief clerk's offices.

The appointee is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and has been active in financial enterprises and legal circles of his State for a number of years. His contemplated retirement as active head of the St. Paul firm was recently announced.

$100,000 Prizes Up In Fight on Cancer

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—One hundred thousand dollars in prizes to the person or group discovering means of controlling and preventing cancer will be awarded by William Lawrence Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Co.

Announcement of the prize offers was made here tonight by Dr. George A. Eger, managing director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, at a dinner marking the opening of a campaign by the society for a $1,000,000 endowment fund.

Mr. Saunders offers $50,000 to any one discovering the cause of cancer and how it can be prevented positively and $50,000 to the discoverer of a proved cure.

Minister Not to Duel; Prefers Cabinet Post

Bucharest, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—Minister of Justice Theodore Codalibu much prefers to hold on to his job than to fight a duel, especially since it is his business to enforce the law against dueling.

M. Codalibu yesterday was challenged by Dr. Nicolas Lupu, former minister of justice, and member of the Roumanian parliament, to meet on the field of honor because of an alleged insulting reference to the challenger by the minister of justice during a debate in the chamber of deputies.

M. Codalibu decided to "sleep on" the challenge and today said that since the law forbids dueling and as minister of justice it was his duty to enforce it, he would have to resign his post in order to fight. He added that he much preferred the ministry to a duel.

Bitzler, the State's "surprise witness," testified today.

Bitzler's testimony painted in a background of alleged police corruption and bootlegging as the setting for McDermott's activities early on the night the publisher was slain.

On cross-examination Bitzler admitted existence of his own criminal record.

Bitzler testified he talked to McDermott on the Tuesday evening preceding the slaying of Mellett and said McDermott told him, "I stand in here. I can do whatever I want and no cop would do anything about it."

Early in the evening that Mellett was shot to death, Bitzler testified, he voiced a wish he had $200. He said Pat McDermott told him, "I sure will have $200 in the morning."

Bitzler's own criminal record, as admitted on the stand under cross-examination, included a sentence in Pennsylvania for theft of a handbag, a sentence for drunkenness and an indictment on a statutory charge.

Much of the morning session of court was occupied with disputes between opposing counsel as to the competence and admissibility of Bitzler's testimony.

Defense Motion Fails.

The State won a victory when Judge Diehl overruled a defense motion to strike out Bitzler's testimony. The defense claimed the testimony irrelevant, but Prosecutor C. B. McClintock declared it competent because it would aid in indicating the state of mind of the murderer.

"To get rid of Mellett, who was hammering away in his newspaper at the bootleg traffic and making it unsafe," he said.

The bullet taken from Mellett's head in an autopsy was a .38 caliber bullet, Robinson said, but declared it is impossible to tell the type of weapon used other than that it was not fired from an automatic pistol.

Two other bullets taken from the walls of Mellett's house were .38 caliber, he said, one of which was fired from the gun which killed Mellett and the other from a different source. He said it was unlikely that three guns had been used in the slaying.

Thelma Davis, of Cleveland, told the stand to testify concerning McDermott's actions between the day of the murder and July 34, when he disappeared.

FALL OF HANGCHOW TO CANTON REPORTED

City of 800,000 Only 110
Miles From Shanghai Taken by Southerners.

Shanghai, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—The city of Hangchow in Chekiang province is reported to have fallen to the Cantonese.

The capture of Hangchow, if confirmed, marks another step in the northward advance of the Cantonese nationalist forces in their campaign against the northern war lords.

The city, which had been under the control of the northern war lords, is one of the principal objectives of the Cantonese drive.

Hangchow lies at the head of Hangchow bay and at the mouth of the Yangtze-Kiang, the southern terminus of the Grand canal.

Irish Brewers Must Learn Trade as Boys

Dublin, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—Olivier Cromwell, who acquired "the art of brewing" because famous as a brewer, has many imitators among the boys of today who have taken up beer making as a profession.

One of the largest breweries in Ireland accepts only boys from Winchester school for training, as the task of turning out a fully qualified brewer is looked upon as being a highly technical one. A thorough knowledge of biology and advanced chemistry is necessary in any fermentation industry and takes at least three years to acquire.

Former Kaiser Ill;
Has Influenza Cold

Doorn, Holland, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—Former Kaiser William of Germany was confined to his bed today with influenza, it was reported by a doctor who was described as an "influenza cold."

The former Kaiser three weeks ago suffered an attack of rheumatism following a severe cold which he contracted while tramping about the grounds of Doorn House, his place of exile, in wet weather. He was kept to his bed for several days. The former emperor will be 68 on January 27.

MAN AND WIFE UNITED BY ANOTHER'S DEATH

Taxi Driver, Who Believed
Suicide Was Spouse,
Finds Her Alive.

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—A taxi-cab driver and his wife, separated five years, were reunited today through the accidental leap of an unidentified woman whom he at first had believed was his wife.

The woman plunged 115 feet to her death yesterday afternoon from the Riverside drive viaduct, falling almost at the feet of the taxi driver, Joseph Kipchak, who had his stand near the Fort Lee ferry. When her face was turned upward, Kipchak identified her as his wife, Margaret, and collapsed. He ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment and gave orders for a funeral. He then went to tell relatives of the tragedy and was informed he must be mistaken as his wife was living in Yonkers. He went to the address given, found his wife and removed caused by the supposed tragedy led to a reconciliation. Kipchak told the police of the mistaken identity, the funeral plans were cancelled and the body of the suicide was taken to the city morgue.

LOANS FOR FRANCE URGED BY T. T. BUSH, ADDRESSING DAVES

Private Assistance Would Be Beneficial to Relations,
Financier Holds.

CHANGE IN CONDITIONS
REPORTED AFTER TOUR

Stabilization of Franc Would Be Made Certain, It Is Held in Letter.

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—Reversing his previous position opposing a loan to France, Irving T. Bush, financier and head of the Bush Terminal Co., in a letter to Vice President Davies made public today advocates an American loan from private sources and at an early date, to assist the French in stabilizing their currency and reestablishing their financial situation.

Mr. Bush, who has just returned from a visit to France, explains he has reversed his position because he believes conditions in France have changed. He already has discussed the subject with Mr. Davies and with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and is now seeking to interest political leaders and financial interests in making such a loan.

"I have been in entire sympathy with the program of our government to frown upon further advances to France until they put their government house in order," wrote Mr. Bush. "This reform is under way, and the condition is radically different from that which existed when our policy was adopted."

No Serious Ill Will for U. S.

After stating his belief that the French people hold no serious ill will against the United States but that there is some misunderstanding of the country's position on the debt settlement problem Mr. Bush wrote:

"I believe the present situation is critical and that our position should be again considered. I have no sympathy with the theory of cancellation. I believe, however, that we should be careful thought to whether a loan from private sources in this country in the immediate future will not be eminently wise, both from the selfish and unselfish point of view."

"Such a loan would make certain the stabilization of the franc at a time when it is trembling in the balance. It would restore to a sound basis of revaluation, the last of sick currency among the great nations of Europe. It would promote international trade and have many collateral effects which would benefit this country."

"It would prove to the French people that we do not hold aloof in their trouble and that we are ready to recognize their obligations to us."

Mr. Bush then points out that the French trade balance is on the right side, that they are not unemployed, that the people are prosperous, and other conditions such that, with the help of the United States, a balance of the budget completed, France would in a short time become a creditor nation and independent of outside help.

SAYS MRS. VAIL GAVE BELLBOY $300,000

Broker Reveals Alleged Patron of Youth, Now Facing Larceny Charge.

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 15.—Hyman L. Gordon, a former bellboy in the Hotel Brema here, who five years ago said he had been made beneficiary of a trust fund of $300,000 by a rich widow for being polite to her while she was stopping at the hotel, is now on trial charged with larceny of $15,000 and uttering a fraudulent check.

The wealthy woman's name has been kept a secret as a condition of the trust, but according to testimony of Clarence V. Grove, manager of a bond house, Lederman told him his benefactress was Mrs. Theodore N. Vail, widow of the president of the American Bell Telephone Co.

On August 14, 1921, it was published that Lederman had received $75,000 from his patron. Later it was announced the rich woman had given him a mansion in Chestnut Hill valued at $200,000 on condition he marry a girl she approved. He so far has failed to meet this condition, it was said.

Father of 4 Children
Hangs Self in Cell

Danville, Va., Dec. 15.—J. H. Parsons, 27 years old, automobile salesman, hanged himself in the city jail here last night. He took off his belt, made a noose with the buckle, tied the other end to a cell bar and then leaped backward, causing strangulation. A negro trustee found him.

Parsons, according to police, was found intoxicated in an automobile last night and taken to jail. Later he asked the trustee to obtain a bondsman for him. Shortly afterward he ended his life. He leaves his wife and four small children.

San Antonio Town Crier Fights Order to Desist

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—The unofficial town crier of San Antonio, an ancient and picturesque institution, today was struggling against the march of modernity.

The fire and police commission has ordered Julius Meyer to "cease and desist." Julius is a little round man, in startling dress, mounted on a small horse. It has been his wont for years to amble through the streets crying advertisements through a megaphone.

Ordinarily he wore a bright vest over a green shirt, but sometimes he stuffed his figure into a baseball uniform or surrounded himself with pads to advertise a football game.

Others threatened to enter the field so the commission ordered Julius to desist. Today he planned to circulate a petition asking recall of the order.

PAUL HAUPT, HOPKINS
PROFESSOR, IS DEAD

Professor of Semitic Languages, He Directed Oriental Seminary.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 15.—Dr. Paul Haupt, W. W. Spence professor of the Semitic languages and director of the Oriental seminary at the Johns Hopkins university, died today at Johns Hopkins hospital after an illness of ten days. Death was caused by pneumonia, followed by pneumonia.

Recognized as one of the leading philologists of the world and noted as a Semitic scholar, Dr. Haupt has been connected with the Hopkins faculty for nearly 44 years. He was born at Gortingen, Germany, November 25, 1858, and received his early education there. He took the degree of doctor of philosophy at the University of Leipzig in 1877.

Later he did postgraduate work at the University of Leipzig and Berlin.

Dr. Haupt then became associated with the faculty of the University of Göttingen. In 1883 he became a member of the faculty of Hopkins as professor of Semitic languages.

While still in Germany Dr. Haupt's fame as an Assyriologist had begun to spread. In his more than 600 works he is considered to have made many important contributions to the ancient history of the Jewish people.

Stone & Webster Enter Consolidation

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—Consolidation of the securities department of Stone & Webster, Inc., nationally known for its activities in the public utility field, and the old investment house of Budget & Co. was announced today.

A new company, known as Stone, Webster & Budget, Inc., will begin operations on January 1 with an authorized capital of $10,000,000.

Bayard P. Pope, a partner of Budget & Co., will become president of the new company. Other officers and directors will be drawn from both participating companies.

Edward Glenn, an American, was found dead in a Nelson hospital yesterday. An hour later Robert Cameron, who came here from Scotland, succumbed in a hospital, where he was taken when found suffering intense pain.

John Matthew Doyle and Clarence Cook, the former from the United States and the latter from Hamilton, Ont., were sentenced to jail for drunkenness and will be taken to a hospital, where they died last night.

Suits Are Required For Catalina Swim

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—Mrs. Mille Corson, first mother to swim the English channel, who has criticized the plans of some long distance swimmers to enter the Catalina island contest clad only in grease, was advised today that bathing suits would be required.

The assurance was contained in an invitation from the Los Angeles Surf club, which is in charge of the arrangements for the swim for William Wrigley Jr., millionaire Chicago sportsman, and donor of the $25,000 prize. The club wishes her to wear its colors.

Goodyear Plant for Australia.

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. has purchased a 20-acre factory site near Sydney, Australia, and will start construction of a modern tire factory to be in production by December, 1927. It was announced today. The factory will have a capacity of 1,000 tires and tubes daily.

Those in hospitals are George Eshman, 39, Asheville, N. C., broken ribs; C. M. Adams, 30, Williamsburg, Ky., spine injuries; and Burner Miles, negro, 35, porter, of Covington, Ky., most seriously hurt with chest injuries.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ROB QUEEN MARIE IN U. S.

Revealing Effort, Police of
New York Accuse Man
Caught Near Flat.

CARRIED MUCH JEWELRY

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—An attempt to rob Queen Marie was disclosed today by police detectives. A man who claims to be a professional tea taster, but who is accused by police of having attempted to steal gems from the Roumanian Queen when she was visiting here, was arrested today for the robbery of nearly $2,000 in jewels from Queen Marie's apartment.

He gave his name as John Alderson and his age at 27. Apparently he is well educated. He was arrested as he was leaving the arway of a building in the fashionable section of the upper east side, where Frothingham has an apartment on the ground floor.

Police list a $1,500 bracelet set with 30 emeralds, a diamond ring, a gold cigarette case, gold match case and gold bar pin as having been recovered from him. They allege he has a police record in England as well as in this country.

Detectives alleged that when Queen Marie was visiting the United States she was visiting the apartment of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., into a Fifth avenue restaurant, apparently lured by a display of gems, but got nothing.

The neighborhood in which he was captured has been under observation for some time because of burglaries. Police allege a man of Alderson's appearance recently followed a member of the family of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., into a Fifth avenue restaurant, apparently lured by a display of gems, but got nothing.

Police allege that Alderson often displays a preference for antiques. The police had admitted to England that he was arrested in London 14 months ago on a burglary charge and later released on parole. The plan to interrupt a holdup of the University Extension Conservatory and died shortly afterward. At least one of the negroes took refuge in a house at Forty-first street and Vincennes avenue. When the squads reached the house, however, the negro had escaped.

The negroes held up about 50 persons in the conservatory, a correspondence school of music, robbed them of small sums and then forced them into the basement. An employee, however, escaped and summoned Bonfield, who encountered the hold-up pair as they were leaving. They shot him in the back and fled. Bonfield is a son of South Park policeman and a nephew of the late Police Inspector John Bonfield, who commanded a company of police in the Haymarket riot of 1886.

Patrolman John Shorpp was shot in the arm in an encounter with two negro suspects, one of whom he captured.

Grade Students Vote
Washington Truthful

Atlanta, Dec. 15 (By A. P.)—George Washington's claim to the distinction of having been the greatest American, ran the gamut from "I think he was a nice little boy" to "he won many battles with the Germans and many other countries," but his outstanding attribute was his truthfulness.

Fourth grade students of the Lucile street school in Atlanta, voting the "greatest American" honor to the first President, emphasized the cherry tree incident and one little girl wrote in her essay that "I think George Washington was the greatest man because he never told a lie."

Paul Revere ranked second in the children's admiration and Betsy Ross third.

BUTLER PRESENTS PLEA TO COOLIDGE FOR LARGER NAVY

House Group Adopts Unusual Means by Sending Chairman to White House.

SUBMARINES, AIRCRAFT, CRUISERS ARE WANTED

Great Britain and Japan Said to Exceed America in Naval Power.

(By the Associated Press.)

The unusual procedure of sending its chairman personally to the White House was employed yesterday by the House naval committee in an effort to obtain the President's endorsement of its plan for an increase in the size of the navy.

The request, embodied in a confidential letter, was presented by Chairman Butler as a formal communication from a committee of Congress to the President in person.

Mr. Butler remained with the President and Secretary Mellon about half an hour. Upon leaving the White House he did not appear elated, but said the meeting had been cordial and that no material differences of opinion had arisen.

Letter Approved by Committee.

Approved unanimously by the committee, the letter was drafted after a week of questioning high naval officials on the condition, strength and weakness of the nation's sea forces.

The committee's inquiry was prompted by the failure of the budget bureau to recommend appropriations for three light cruisers, one or two new dirigibles and a number of airplanes authorized by Congress last winter.

Although Mr. Coolidge in his annual message to Congress recommended withholding construction of the three cruisers in view of the possibility of a disarmament conference, he arranged at Geneva, high naval officers in testimony before the committee stressed what they said was an imperative need for these ships at once.

Secretary Wilbur testified that he had recommended to the budget bureau that provision be made in naval appropriations for the craft, but that this suggestion had been vetoed by Director Lord. He declined to add, at a public hearing, the reason for the veto. At one committee session, Mr. Butler, after interrogating Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations, estimated at least $500,000,000 would be required to place the navy on a parity with that of other nations in the construction of light cruisers permitted under the Washington arms conference treaty.

Held U. S. Now in Third Place.

Testimony of naval experts also was to the effect that American naval power had dropped to third place, being superseded in strength by both Great Britain and Japan. After listening to testimony on the strength and condition of the navy's submarine fleet, Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking Republican, asserted that in his opinion not more than half a dozen of the 124 submarines were "worth a damn."

He also assailed the budget director as the dictator of national defense policies and asserted he constituted a menace to the national defense.

The committee brought out that funds recommended by the budget for airplane construction next year were insufficient to provide for more than one-third of the number authorized by Congress, while an appropriation had been recommended for only one of the two dirigibles included in the program.

No indication has been given by committee as to the course of action it will take. The annual navy appropriation bill is expected to be reported to the House this week and probably brought up on the floor before the Christmas recess.

At that time it will be in order for any member of the House to propose amendments increasing the size of appropriations it carries for naval activities.

SMOOT CLOSES SENATE DOOR TO TAX REDUCTION

Announces Stand as Democrats Offer Not to Obstruct Republican Bill.

(By the Associated Press.)

The door against immediate tax reduction, already closed by House Republican leaders, was bolted yesterday by Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee, as Senate Democrats prepared for action.

The Democrats, led by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, told the Senate a $500,000,000 surplus was in sight for this fiscal year and volunteered not to stand in the way of a Republican bill.

Senator Smoot replied that he not only favored application of the surplus to retirement of the public debt, but he doubted the wisdom of the proposal of President Coolidge for a refund on next year's income tax payments.

"It would mean a saving of only 35 cents to the small taxpayer," he said, "and would benefit only the large corporations and taxpayers with large incomes."

Senator Harrison, insisting the "American people want tax reduction," called upon Congress to carry out the expressed wish of President Coolidge for a nonpartisan tax credit plan or "some tax relief."

Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, charged that Republicans were using tax reduction for political campaigns and were saving a huge tax cut for the eve of the 1928 election.

OIL CASE JURY SINGS CONSIDERING VERDICT

throughout the afternoon and night. The conversation was of a speculative nature. What would the verdict be? How long would it take to reach one? Then, of course, they discussed the possibility of a "hung" jury.

Wilton Lambert probably has spent as many heart-breaking hours waiting for juries to come out as any lawyer in town, and he has probably had more experience than any other man where hung juries are concerned. In the famous Wan murder case, which was tried three times, Lambert had two juries stay out for more than 30 hours. Both of these juries were deadlocked in the end.

Another large crowd is expected to flock to the courthouse at 10 o'clock this morning. If it is as large as is expected, about one-third of it will be able to get into the tiny courtroom.

Fall-Sinclair Jury Panel 1,000 Men

A list of 1,000 potential jurors has been compiled by the jury commission in preparation for the forthcoming trial of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair. It is expected that the selection of a jury will prove a tremendous task, in view of the wide publicity given the Fall-Sinclair trial.

The names of the 1,000 men on the list that has been compiled by the jury commission were taken from the city directory, the telephone directory and from various other sources. Some of them were turned over to the commission by court house habitues.

HOUSE FARM BLOC CHIEF THREATENS REVOLT ON TARIFF

Dickinson, of Iowa, Warns of Party Split Unless Relief Is Granted.

M'NARY BILL ATTACKED BOTH SIDES OF CAPITOL

Harrison and Aswell Score the Measure and Senator Presents New Bill.

(By the Associated Press.)

Farm relief swung into full stride in Congress yesterday, making its initial appearance this session on the House floor, where it joined with the tariff and talk of the nomination of a Republican presidential candidate in 1928.

Taking advantage of debate on the agricultural appropriation bill, Representative Dickinson, an Iowa Republican, declared that if relief were not provided as set forth in the new McNary bill, there might follow a division of party lines, with middle Western Republicans seeking to ease the rural situation by downward revision of the tariff.

This brought a demand for immediate tariff revision from Representative Connally, of Connecticut, Texas, who charged the Iowan with seeing that it was done "now and not after Mr. Lowden is nominated for President."

While this discussion was going on, leaders still were attempting to decide who would introduce the McNary bill in the House. Representative Funnell (Republican), Indiana, had made up his mind to do so if Chairman Haugen of the House agricultural committee does not.

Harrison Presents Bill.

The bill was assailed yesterday by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, and Representative Aswell, of Louisiana, Democrats, Harrison opposing it because he believes it embodies tariff legislation and Aswell standing against the equalization fee provision.

The Mississippi senator introduced a bill of his own providing for loans to farming interests up to $1,200,000,000 through federal intermediate credit banks.

Another relief proposal was explained to President Coolidge yesterday by W. I. Drummond, senior senator from the recent St. Louis conference. He suggested a federal board with a $100,000,000 revolving fund to loan to cooperative farming organizations.

An attempt was made in the House to force consideration of farm legislation when Representative Howard, Democrat, Nebraska, offered a resolution to devote half of all legislative hours between now and Christmas to the farm question. The resolution was blocked, however, by Chairman Snell of the rules committee.

Representative Connally's reference to Frank O. Lowden's presidential candidacy also was broadened to include Speaker Longworth.

Tariff Revision Discussed.

Representative Dickinson's hint that party lines might be divided over farm relief with tariff revision a possibility also received attention from House members.

"There is a firm conviction in the minds of a great many in the West," he said, "that the revision of the tariff would be beneficial to the agricultural interests of the country."

"In my judgment," he concluded, "the party leadership that either admits the lack of a program or shows a disposition to further delay an effort to pass this legislation with no substitute to offer, should be repudiated and dethroned."

One of the farm relief bills introduced today was offered by Representative McLaughlin (Rep.), Nebraska, who would create a Federal corporation, with a capital stock of $1,000,000,000 to provide economic guidance of the production and marketing of agricultural products.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.
Met at noon December 15 and recessed at 5:30 p. m. until today at 12 o'clock.

After brief discussion passed bill for purchase of Pennsylvania avenue-Mall triangle property for public building sites and authorizing expenditure of $25,000,000.

Rivers and harbors bill was temporarily laid aside and postoffice and Treasury appropriation bill taken up for consideration, but without final action.

Committee provision authorizing expenditure of $300,000 for spies and "under-cover" men in prohibition unit was struck from bill on point of order sustained by Vice President after spirited debate.

Report that Treasury surplus will amount to $500,000,000 led to sharp Democratic attacks by Senators Harrison, of Mississippi, and Swanson, of Virginia, on refusal of Republicans to permit tax reduction legislation at this session.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, denounced reported action of French government asking chamber of deputies for special appropriation to be used to carry on "propaganda in the United States."

Thomas W. Swan, of Connecticut, was nominated to be circuit judge, second circuit; Selden Chapin, of Pennsylvania, secretary in diplomatic service; Henry Joseph Reilly, brigadier general in reserve, several United States marshals, and long list of postmasters.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, introduced a bill to provide pension of $50 monthly to widows of all civil war veterans regardless of whether they were married before or after the war.

Chairman Moses, of post offices and post roads committee, announced there would be no modification of postal rates this session.

Senator Cameron, of Arizona, introduced a bill to provide for retirement of all officers who served in Spanish-American war.

Strong opposition developed before immigration committee against restoration of citizenship to 60 Hindus deprived of their naturalization papers by decision of Supreme Court.

HOUSE.

Met at noon December 15 and adjourned at 5:05 p. m. until today at 12 o'clock.

Passed Interior Department appropriation bill carrying total of $259,400,000, greater part of which is for pensions, virtually as reported from committee.

Before military committee, Secretary Davis suggested enforced resignations of hundreds of army officers as means of solving problem of army promotions.

Judiciary committee recommended legislation for additional judge in Iowa because of illness of Judge Martin Wade.

Irrigation committee rejected amendment to Boulder canyon dam bill which would have prohibited construction of dam without consent of States affected.

On a point of order, House struck from Interior Department bill item of $50,000 for support of Howard university.

Secretary Mellon told buildings committee that survey for new structures under $100,000,000 bill would be confined to cities with postal receipts of $20,000 or more.

Under terms of a resolution by Mr. Howard, of Nebraska, one-half the time of session between now and the holidays would be devoted to consideration of farm relief.

An investigation of the condition of the United States navy and its strength as compared with navies of other powers signatory to Washington disarmament conference, is demanded in resolution by Mr. Black (Democrat), New York.

Bill by Mr. McLaughlin, of Michigan, proposes creation of Federal agricultural corporation with capital stock of $1,000,000,000, to be raised by sales tax on basic agricultural commodities.

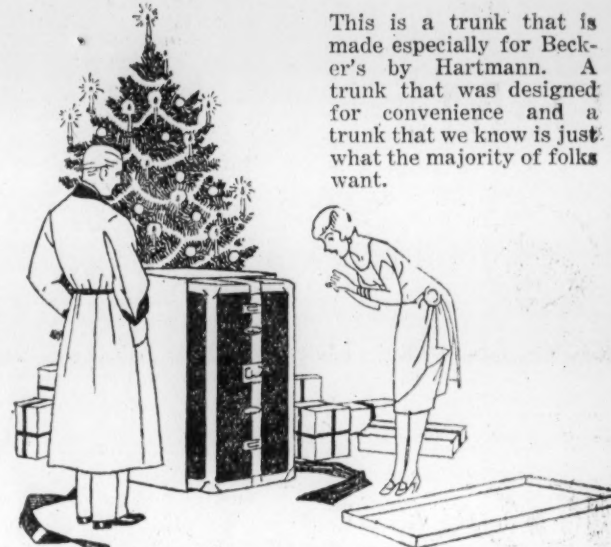

House considers alien property bill today.

THE SURPLUS AND FARM RELIEF.

The new farm relief bill is before Congress. It has been modified, but its essential features are the same as those of the McNary-Haugen bill. The modifications are obviously made for the purpose of smoothing the passage of the bill through Congress, by two methods: First, by making cotton and rice beneficiaries of government aid; and second, by pretending to eliminate all provisions for price-fixing and governmental guarantees of profits on crops.

The bill authorizes an appropriation of $250,000,000 with which to finance the operations looking to the handling of surpluses. As the farm interests affected are determined to obtain "relief" at this session or know the reason why, it follows that the authorization of an appropriation will be followed immediately by a demand for the appropriation itself.

There goes more than one-half of the Treasury surplus!

The taxpayers of the United States have paid excessive prices for foodstuffs, besides paying the tax which makes up the Treasury surplus. While the agricultural interests may not have received their due share of the prices paid by consumers, the fact remains that consumers have paid. Now it is proposed that prices shall be kept high hereafter by enabling a farm board, backed by the Treasury, to withdraw surplus crops and float them off at good prices. The market is not to be permitted to have a greater supply than it can consume, and, of course, the demand will tend to keep prices high.

If a proposal like this were made in behalf of the producers of an industrial surplus of any kind, what would American citizens think of it? What if the Iron and Steel Institute should organize a steel relief movement and demand the creation of a steel relief board, to be financed by an appropriation of $250,000,000 from the Treasury in order to withhold the steel surplus and maintain high prices? Or what if the Petroleum Institute should declare that the overproduction of petroleum and gasoline was ruining their business, and should demand an appropriation of $250,000,000 with which to restrict the flow of gas to automobile consumers and thus maintain high prices?

The industries are well organized and are efficient in marketing their products. They cut out middlemen. They take all the risk, then they produce a surplus. The farmers are not well organized and do not market their products. They sell to middlemen, who turn around and exact high prices from consumers. The farmers can not always prevent the production of a surplus, as industry can, but they can do much more in that direction than they are now doing. Already the cotton growers are providing against the creation of a surplus next year.

What agriculture needs is organization and cooperation within the industry, so that foodstuffs can be marketed by the producers themselves. Consumers could pay liberal prices for food and yet obtain it much cheaper than at present, if efficient marketing were established and unnecessary middlemen eliminated. The spread between producer and consumer should be split between them, and should not go to middlemen.

The new McNary bill is objectionable to the consumers of the United States. They have created the Treasury surplus by paying excessively high taxes. The surplus belongs to them and not to any industry or class of citizens. The taking of one-half of that surplus and devoting it to the farming class or any other class would be an intolerable wrong.

TREATMENT FOR DRUG ADDICTS.

The New York Medical Journal and Record publishes an article signed by Dr. Alexander Lambert and Dr. Frederick Tilney, long-time students of the treatment of narcotic drug addicts, confirming the apparent success of a new treatment for drug addiction as developed by experiments upon prison inmates and self-committed patients at the correctional hospital on Welfare Island in New York. More than 300 cases were observed, of which not quite one-third were those of women.

The basis of the treatment is a number of injections by hypodermic of a preparation called "narcosan." The formula was invented by A. S. Horowitz, a biochemist educated at the University of Budapest, who has lived in this country for the last decade. The theory of the action of narcosan is the body is that narcotics call forth certain protective substances to neutralize the drug. If the narcotic is withdrawn, these protective substances are themselves toxic to the system. Narcosan, however, composed of lincolpids obtained from soy beans and cotton seed, vitamins obtained from plant seeds and non-specific proteins obtained from alfalfa seed or Hungarian millet neutralizes these toxic substances.

According to reports, only one of the cases studied returned to the use of drugs after being discharged from the hospital, and this particular patient denied that she craved drugs, saying that she liked the sensation they gave and had no intention of giving them up. On the other hand, the permanency of the treatment is undetermined and can not be estimated for at least eighteen months. It, however, subsequent developments prove the permanent efficacy of the treatment, the discovery is of far-reaching importance to the world.

THE MAIL TRIANGLE.

Without a roll call or an amendment, the Smoot bill authorizing Federal purchase of the Mail-Avenue triangle was passed by the Senate yesterday. A similar bill is before the House committee on public buildings and grounds and has every chance of receiving approval from that body and of being placed on the floor of the House at an early date. If the Senate action is any sort of guide, the President already having expressed his approval of the legislation, this constructive program is within a stone's throw of accomplishment.

Conversion of the triangle bounded by the Mall, Pennsylvania avenue and Fifteenth street into a park for government structures and departments is the consummation of a dream of long standing. For many years this area has been the outstanding blot on an otherwise beautiful city. Private enterprise has not felt justified in developing the triangle because there has been no telling when the government would take it over. Values, however, have kept pace with other sections. Had the government gone ahead with its $50,000,000 building program as originally planned, each building placed within the triangle would have increased the price of the remaining parcels of land. It is the part of economy to make the entire purchase at the present time.

The situation in the House, busy at the present time with appropriation measures, is such that in all probability the triangle purchase bill will not be reported out of committee until after Christmas. Now that the bill has passed the Senate, public and official support of the program must not be allowed to waver. The measure is so important to Washington and to the entire country that pressure must be kept behind the bill until it is safely enacted into law.

MUSSOLINI ON THE RADIO.

Several days ago Benito Mussolini projected his voice into a recording device in Italy and impressed its record upon a wax disk. Immediately thereafter the disk was obtained by a Chicago newspaper, rushed to the United States, and on Tuesday night the voice of the Duce transmitting a message to America was put on the air by a powerful broadcasting station. The address was delivered in Italian, followed immediately by an English translation. "The number of thousands of persons who heard the message can only be guessed at. The most interesting phrase was directed to Americans of Italian descent, of whom Mussolini said: 'I would not miss the opportunity of praising them for the conduct which has surrounded them with love and appreciation, but I will not cease to recommend to them discipline and respect for local institutions and devotion to the land which has received them.'"

Mussolini has the good fortune to be living in an unusual age. Had he held sway even as little as twenty years ago, it is probable he could not have been the outstanding figure that he is today. He would have been, of course, a dynamic personality to all Italy, and by virtue of printed words and photographic likenesses somewhat of a world figure. Today, however, the moving picture has carried the living Mussolini around the world. Few there are who have not seen him in action, and to the millions who have seen him gesticulate wildly in making an address, can now be added tens of thousands of others who actually have heard his voice.

America has had Italy brought very close to its doors by last Tuesday's address. This is a fine way to make use of the infant giant, radio.

GOVERNMENT AND PRICES.

Behind all projects to put into commodities an exchange value greater than the commercial or market value is the query: How far can government go in the direction of price-fixing or price-regulation? What can Congress do to stabilize prices of commodities? Can Congress pass a valid law to add to the exchange value of any commodity?

The functions of Congress are limited by the language of the Constitution. In section 8 of that document are found all of the enumerated powers of Congress. There is nothing giving Congress the power to add to the prices or exchange values of commodities. "To coin money and regulate the value thereof" does not mean, by the widest stretch of the imagination, that Congress can regulate prices or add to the value of commodities.

Thus far, nearly every measure proposed for the farm relief rests upon the false idea that an act of Congress can create wealth, add to the value of commodities, and fix prices. The power of Congress is limited, and any proposal to add exchange value or price to certain commodities will be found beyond those limits.

If an act of Congress could add to the value of commodities, it would be a very easy matter to pass a law creating sufficient wealth to pay the entire expenses of the government without raising money by means of taxes and loans.

Here are a few fundamentals:
 The government must either tax or borrow to gain wealth; it has no money of its own.
 The government is not a commercial undertaking, but a political establishment; it has no power to enter the field of commerce and trade, except the purchase of what it needs in the performance of its constitutional functions.
 The government can not guarantee a profit to any private business or private undertaking.
 The government can not fix or control prices or the exchange value of commodities.
 Any plan for the promotion of the welfare of the people must harmonize with these fundamentals.

IMPROVING SCHOOL GROUNDS.

The committee formed several weeks ago to study the cost of beautifying public school grounds reported last Tuesday that $470,000 would be needed to do the work as it should be done. At the same time the engineer commissioner announced that an effort would be made immediately to obtain funds with which to hire a landscape engineer to superintend planting around the schools in association with the municipal architect. In making the announcement the commissioner issued a plea to the citizens of Washington to realize the importance of giving school children something besides bare ground, exterior walls and fences to look at as they approach and play around their schools.

The citizens of Washington do realize the importance of beautifying school grounds, and the engineer commissioner need have no fear of a divided public sentiment on the subject.

Two plans for raising funds have been proposed—either that a direct congressional appropriation for the specific purpose be obtained, or that the work be completed by salvaging unexpected balances on finished projects. The latter step would be easier, in all probability, provided there was any reasonable assurance that projects might be finished with money left over. More frequently, however, appropriated funds fall short of requirements, and it is probable that should this policy be adopted the beautification never would be completed.

The more logical method is to go to Congress with a request for an appropriation for this specific purpose in addition to the regular District and school appropriations.

SUPPLIES IN COLD STORAGE.

There is no danger of famine in the United States for some months to come, according to the reports of the cold storage holdings of foodstuffs. On the contrary, unless the population develops greater appetite than has prevailed during the last year there is danger that some of the provisions may go to waste.

On December 1 there were 533,225,000 pounds of meats on hand which was 21,678,000 more than on the corresponding date a year ago. That great mass of pork, beef and lamb was aside from the poultry holdings in the warehouses, of which 108,953,000 pounds were reported, that figure being higher by 20,000,000 pounds than on December 1, 1925. Of the poultry 6,000,000 pounds were turkeys.

There are nearly 3,500,000 more bushels of apples awaiting buyers this year than last. The aggregate supply of this fruit in warehouses on December 1 was 4,548,000 barrels, 15,125,000 boxes and 2,718,000 bushel baskets. Unlike meat and poultry, the stock of apples can not be definitely estimated from the warehouse reports. Apples can be kept in cellars during the winter, and there are doubtless several million additional bushels so stored in States where orchards are important parts of the farms.

However, in spite of the vast holdings of food supplies, the average consumer is inclined to growl over the price he must pay for his fruit, meat and poultry, for there appears little relationship between the wholesale supply and the retail prices.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

"The responsibilities of health officers, Federal, State and local, are increasing, but our knowledge of disease and the methods by which it can be prevented are also increasing," says Surgeon General Cumming of the public health service, in his report for the fiscal year ended June 30. The surgeon general, however, finds that the improved facilities for travel and transportation of human beings, as well as goods, multiply the opportunities for the introduction and spread of disease from State to State as well as from foreign countries into the United States.

The public health service is on the watch at all times, and the progress made in fighting the ills of humanity is exhibited in the practical elimination of many of the ailments which formerly caused thousands of deaths annually. It is pointed out in the report that the education of the public as to the art of prevention is even more important than the development of means for curing some of the diseases which afflict mankind. For instance, smallpox and diphtheria can be practically eliminated if the public can be made to realize the advantage of using the well-known means of prevention.

Surgeon General Cumming calls especial attention to the fact that while the municipalities and State authorities are alive to the importance of safeguarding the public health, and are cooperating with the Federal bureau with excellent results, 84 per cent of the rural population is as yet unprovided with adequate official local health service.

There have been no importations of plague, cholera, yellow fever or other major quarantinable diseases during the year and this freedom has been secured with a minimum of delay and expense to the traveling public, although the health conditions throughout the world have been threatening.

One of the former sources of the spread of disease was the use of common drinking cups and glasses on trains and in public places. Through the substitution of individual cups and the installation of water fountains this danger has been reduced, and now the report shows that the railroads have practically completed the installation of a new type of water cooler which completely separates the water from the ice in the coolers on passenger trains.

The discovery of antitoxin serums and the commercial production of prophylactic materials has served to aid in checking the ravages of dysentery, scarlet fever and diphtheria, while the distribution of arsenical dust in the breeding places of mosquitoes has helped to eliminate malaria.

Concerning tuberculosis, the tendency is encouraging. The report says: "If the tuberculosis death rate of 1900 had prevailed in the 36 States reporting for 1925 at the same rate in 1925 as in 1900, the total deaths would have been 189,000 from tuberculosis, instead of 76,605 reported, indicating a saving of more than 112,000 lives." Those figures also indicate what enormous advances have been made in fighting diseases through the cooperation of States and municipalities with the Federal public health service.

Romances

By ROBERT QUILEN

THE old-fashioned wife felt neglected if she was seldom kissed. A kiss meant much to her. She had "given her lips" as she expressed it to one man only. If a kiss meant less to her husband it was because he had kissed many another woman and found one kiss much like another.

Modern youngsters who are addicted to indiscriminate "petting" are unconsciously storing up a great disappointment for themselves. They are going to find matrimony a dull adventure, for the physical contacts that should give to each a sense of proprietorship in the other and serve as evidence of a sacred union will seem no more than repetition of former experiences that had no significance.

Experience is a dear teacher in more ways than one. It robs man of the ability to feel a thrill.

In many homes one partner gives a great deal more love than the other. The love of this one is self-sacrificing, worshipful, pathetic. The love of the other is mechanical, almost indifferent.

The explanation is simple. The first has had no other experience of love. This matinee, to her, or to him, is the one great adventure. There has been nothing to afford comparison. The other has loved before, and this present love, however great it may be, is but a retraveling of an accustomed pathway.

If the girl he marries is the third he has loved, she isn't the one that is cheated. Her love, if it is her first, is an unfulfilling web of happiness. Custom can not stale her romance. Marriage does not end it, but insures its perpetuity.

He is the cheated one. His romance is merely a third romance. It is, to put it plainly, old stuff. He has long since eaten his cake, and nobody has yet discovered a way to eat a cake and have it too.

(Copyright, 1926.)

There was a time when most "college tourists" worked their way across. First, the hardest of them used to go on cattle-boats as, one might say, "deep-sea cowboys." Then they found openings as deckhands, kitchen (or galley) helpers, "boots" bath stewards, jazz orchestra men, etc. Now the United States Shipping Board has issued an order to stop all this. It claims that experience has shown that the practice of engaging college tourists for such jobs has tended to demoralize the permanent force and interfered with the policy of building up American crews for our merchant marine. Whether or not this is true, we can not quite understand how the Shipping Board hopes to discourage college tourists who prefer to work their way across. The same sort of young men will grab the jobs when they can, merely refraining from admitting that they are "collegegate."

Calendar Reform.
 Philadelphia Public Ledger: Reform of the calendar has proved too tough a problem even for the committee of the League of Nations appointed to deal with it. After many months of study of the nearly 200 schemes of reform submitted to it, the committee came to the wise conclusion that public opinion was not sufficiently ripe for any action under the auspices of the league. So the whole subject was referred back to the countries interested for further discussion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Care of Pet Animals.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post's Sunday magazine page an article appears on "The Dog in Winter." It is good, and the papers should run more on the care of our pet animals. The public is sadly in need of education along these lines. Let's see that kind of thing often in The Post.
 EMILY E. COUGHLIN.

Pork Barrel Ready for the Surplus.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You ask what is to be done with the surplus. Why, dear man, there is a "pork barrel" with head out, and big enough to swallow up two such surpluses. Just give its sponsors high and true. Major relieve the country from all embarrassment of a surplus.
 PORK BARREL.

The Lady in the Chair.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the constellation Cassiopeia sparkles just northward from the zenith, then the constellation Ursa Major glitters just above the northern horizon. Cassiopeia and Ursa Major revolve, immutably, around Polaris, the North Star. And at present, Cassiopeia sparkles high and true. Major glitters low. The constellation of Cassiopeia is chiefly distinguished by the presence of "The Lady in the Chair." It is also noticeable because it exhibits, viewed from the south, the stary outline of a "W" when above the Pole-star and of an "M" when below it.

Inasmuch as this stary chair occupies entirely different positions during its annual revolution around Polaris, the lady seated within it is securely bound to that chair, otherwise she would fall out of it. And if Cassiopeia fell as far as our earth, she would have a stupendous fall—some trillions of miles!

The "Chair of Cassiopeia" is formed chiefly of five stars, namely, Schedar, Caph, Thul, Ruchbah and Epsilon. Many of us were acquainted with this stary chair when we were young. Now is an excellent time to renew that firmamental acquaintance.

Antilynching Legislation.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Coolidge in his annual message to Congress emphasizes the importance of some effective legal measure to put an end to the horrible practices of lynching. While he does not suggest any specific remedy, he nevertheless stresses the general importance of eradicating this national iniquity. Mr. Coolidge singles out the negro as the special victim of lynch law and advocates some measure of relief for his special and peculiar benefit. It was generosity of heart that prompted him to do this. But the evil of lynching is much broader than its direful effect upon the negro race, which for the time being bears the chief brunt of affliction. There has not been a single year since the record has been kept that white men have not fallen victim to mob fury. Lynching is a nationwide evil; the remedy should be as broad as the atrocity.

Some while ago, I suggested to a senator who is learned in the law, and who ranks high in the councils of the American Bar association, that this galaxy of legal talent ought to undertake to formulate for Congress a law that would effectively deal with lawlessness as far as this can be done by Federal action. Their combined wisdom ought surely to be able to formulate a bill that would meet all constitutional objections.

BUREAU OF BUDGET MAY GET UTILITIES BODY FIGURE TODAY

New Commission Created as Coolidge Signs Bill; $50,000 Is Estimate.

COUNSEL OF PEOPLE IS INCLUDED IN FUND

No Indication Given at White House That the President Will Name Officers.

The District commissioners probably will send to the bureau of the budget today estimates totaling nearly $50,000 designed to pay the cost of operating and running the new public utilities commission, creation of which was provided in a bill signed yesterday by President Coolidge.

The estimates will include salaries at $7,500 each for two commissioners for the new body and $6,000 for a people's counsel, who will plead the cause of the users of public utility before the commission. Funds for rental of offices also will be provided, there being no space in the District building for the body. Secretaries and additional clerical personnel also will be provided for in the bill.

The bill, which President Coolidge recently was represented as disapproving of, brings into being a public utility commission consisting of three members, two to be appointed by the President and the other to be the engineer commissioner of the District, and the office of people's counsel.

Resident Three Years.

The utilities commissioners must have been residents of the District at least three years prior to their appointment and must not have had any interests "voluntarily or involuntarily, directly or indirectly" in any public utility in the District. This is the stipulation to which President Coolidge objected, according to the White House spokesman. The people's counsel must have been engaged in the actual practice of law before the Supreme Court of the District for at least five years prior to his appointment.

There was no indication at the White House yesterday as to when Mr. Coolidge will appoint the new officers, but, as officials of the District government explained, no matter how soon they are appointed they can not function before February 1, as there is little hope of getting a congressional appropriation before that time.

While the new body will occupy rented quarters in some office building near the District building when it first starts, it is the hope of the District commissioners some day to have them in government-owned and specially built building on a site just south of the District building.

Would Change Plans.

To this end District officials and members of the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee expressed a desire a short while ago to the public buildings commission to alter its layout of the development of the triangle south of Pennsylvania avenue and north of the Mall so as to leave space available for a group of municipal buildings to cost between $6,000,000 and $10,000,000. The land now is desired as a site for a labor department building and a supply of "utilites" buildings.

One of the first tasks of the commission will be to answer a letter written by Senator Capper, chairman of the Senate District committee, yesterday to the District commissioners asking them to compile figures on the subject of municipal ownership of public utilities companies. He wants information on the cost of their probable operation by the city and the probable fare.

He is interested in public ownership in connection with Congress' fight to make them merge.

Clendenin Heiress Sues for Annulment

New York, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Preliminary papers in an annulment suit have been served on Baron George Clendenin, a former officer in the imperial Russian army, who, two weeks ago, eloped with Miss Florence Marjorie Clendenin, it was said today by counsel for Miss Clendenin.

Several hours after the wedding, the bride left her husband. Counsel said her action was prompted by discovery of alleged misrepresentations by the baron. The heiress is the daughter of Joseph Clendenin, wealthy lumber magnate.

Roanoke Company Gets Power Permit

(By the Associated Press.) Federal Power commission issued a preliminary permit yesterday to the South Side Power Co., of Roanoke, Va., for the construction of a 20,000 horse-power project on the Roanoke river near Talleys Falls, Va.

Ford's Old Dances Opposed by Parents

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Parents of several hundred school children in Dearborn, home town of Henry Ford, are in controversy with the village school board over the merits of the old-fashioned dances sponsored by Mr. Ford.

The board has a petition presented by more than 200 parents demanding that the schools discontinue the teaching of dancing "in the interests of a higher standard of morality." In answer to the protest, the board announced a public exhibition of the old-fashioned dances, to be held tomorrow night under the direction of instructors employed by Mr. Ford.

Characterizing the protest as ridiculous, Edward F. Fisher, president of the board, said that if a majority of the petitioners still disapprove after witnessing the dances the class would be discontinued.

TWO MARINE PLANES TO WEST COAST FALL

Quantico Fliers Not Injured in Cross-Country Hop, Dispatches Say.

The cross-country flight of marine corps aviators who left Quantico, Va., last week for San Diego, Calif., has been marred by two accidents, according to a dispatch received from Maj. Ross Rowell, flight commander, at the Navy Department yesterday.

He reported from Fort Bliss, Tex., that the plane piloted by Gunner Sergeant J. I. Hockmeyer, of the 1st Marine Aviation Squadron, had crashed at Fadena, Tex., but that they were not injured. The plane was damaged beyond local repair, however, and the marines will proceed to San Diego by rail.

A second dispatch from Tucson, Ariz., reported the crashing of a plane piloted by Marine Gunner Wodarczyk. About a mile out of Tucson it was found necessary to shift the gravity gasoline tank. This proved of no avail and the plane fell. No one was injured, but the plane is a total loss. Eight planes have arrived safely at Tucson, and two are at Lordsburg, N. Mex. They were due to proceed to San Diego yesterday.

OLD PENSION OFFICE SOUGHT FOR MILITIA

Commissioners Again Ask Congress for Quarters for District National Guard.

Housing for the local unit of the national guard engaged the attention of the commissioners again yesterday. Prior to the war the old Pension Office building, straddling the fact that the interior open space of the building would provide a desirable drill hall.

Up to last year the guard was housed in L street, next to Convention hall. The building was wrecked and the national guard had to move. A joint resolution was introduced into Congress to place the guard in the Pension Office structure. It is still pending.

In the meantime the national guard has been given quarters in one of the temporary buildings formerly used as a women's hotel for government employees at North Capitol and D streets.

Richmond City Sells $2,500,000 Bond Issue

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—The American National Bank, of Richmond, and the Chase Securities Corporation, of New York, collocated, were awarded the $2,500,000 4 1/2 per cent highway bonds of the city of Richmond here today with a bid of $2,511,417.50.

The second highest bidder for the certificates was the Equitable Trust Co., of New York, with a bid of $2,510,870. The third highest bidder was Frederick E. Molling & Co., of Richmond, representing Harris, Forbes & Co., of New York, the National City Co., of Baltimore, and the bid was $2,508,280.

Warns of Cotton Men Raising Tobacco Crops

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 15.—Dr. J. R. Hutchinson of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute faculty, addressing the eighteenth annual convention of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union here today, said the most serious problem facing farmers was the light tobacco situation.

The break in cotton prices this year and the enormous price paid for light tobacco, he said, would cause cotton growers next year to turn to tobacco raising and thus flood the market. Following a banquet tonight an address was delivered by W. B. Landson of Kansas, national lecturer of the union.

House Seat Recount Puts England Ahead

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—A recount of votes cast in the November election in Martinsburg, Va., of goods valued at more than $1,000, Mrs. Gladys Leggett, her 16-year-old daughter, Agnes Leggett and Bernard Hardy, arrested here last night, were today taken to Martinsburg for a hearing.

They consented to accompany the officers without requisition papers, asserting they were innocent. Among the thefts charged against the trio is that of $600 in cash from the store of Cohen and Sons.

Danville Gets $58,053 For Community Chest

Special to The Washington Post. Danville, Va., Dec. 15.—Danville's one-day community chest drive for $74,000 to finance the activities of eight local charities resulted in $58,053 being raised today, when the campaign was closed with a luncheon. Three hundred workers participated in the drive.

The Salvation Army is not included in the organizations to be benefited. The sum raised was the largest donation made in Danville for the purpose since world-war days.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST PLAN $1,000,000 DRIVE

Raising of Funds for Church Here Discussed in St. Louis Meeting.

St. Louis, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—The executive committee of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) met here today to discuss means of raising funds to build a $1,000,000 church in Washington. It was announced that R. A. Long, wealthy Kansas City lumber dealer, had given $100,000 to the fund, the largest single contribution to date.

The $1,000,000 edifice which the Christian Church is planning to erect here will occupy the sites on which the Vermont Avenue Christian church and the Marjorie Webster school now stand. The project was conceived by the Rev. Earle Wilsey, pastor of the Vermont Avenue church, who has worked for its fulfillment more than eight years.

Mr. Wilsey is attending the St. Louis meeting. He is accompanied by H. Miller, Green H. Hackworth, Schuyler Shepherd and C. W. Grumbine, representing his congregation. The executive committee took preliminary action on the proposal at a meeting in Washington last week.

Fugitive Radio Man Is Indicted

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio man in the Alvin Karpis-McPherson case, was indicted on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice by the Los Angeles county grand jury today.

Before an officer can be sent to Sacramento to ask Gov. Friend W. Richardson to issue a requisition for the return of the radio man, the district attorneys office said it will be necessary that Ormiston be placed under arrest. In a legal sense, the officers said, the radio man is still at large.

SENATE WETS FAIL TO HALT $12,000,000 FUND FOR DRY LAW

Fight, However, Eliminates From Treasury Bill $500,000 for Undercover Work.

"SNEAKS AND SNOOPERS" DENOUNCED IN DEBATE

Senator Edge Issues Call for Conference of Antidrys in Upper House.

(By the Associated Press.) Senate wets yesterday let pass without protest the $12,000,000 appropriation in the Treasury supply bill for the enforcement activities of the prohibition unit, but scored a victory against the provision for "undercover" agents. Led by Senators Bruce, Maryland, and Reed, Missouri (Democrats), they let loose an assault against the proposed use of $500,000 for "undercover" men whom they described as "spies, sneaks and snoopers."

Vice President Dawes finally ruled that the proposal of Assistant Secretary Andrews, chief of the dry forces, for authority to spend $500,000 without regard to present auditing requirements was "clearly out of order" in that it contemplated new legislation in an appropriation bill. The proposal had been eliminated in the House on similar grounds, but was reinserted by the Senate appropriations committee.

While the Senate wets were making their assault on the $500,000 provision, a movement got under way to formally organize them, for the first time since the dry law went into effect, to map out a campaign of procedure on other prohibition proposals.

Edge Calls Conference. Senator Edge (Republican), of New Jersey, issued invitations to twenty senators for a conference at an indefinite date, but the list not made public. During the Senate discussion, Senator Bruce denounced the "undercover" provision as "tyrannical" and the proposal was generally attacked because it permitted the "secret use" of funds.

"There will be no liberty left in this land," asserted Bruce, "if this system is allowed to run to its extreme consequences." Gen. Andrews contemplates nothing less than a military tyranny for this country with proposals of this kind.

Senator Reed contended it was futile to authorize the use of $500,000 for employment of an "army of spies" because "when you stop liquor at one source it breaks out at another."

Senator Edwards (Democrat), New Jersey, another wet, remarked that "there is nothing in this provision to prevent it being given to the anti-saloon league or to Wayne B. Wheeler." Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, told his colleagues that if prohibition is bad for the country there is only one way to get rid of it, and that is to enforce it to the limit.

KLAN INSURANCE BILL INDORSEMENT DENIED

T. M. Baldwin Brands Publication as Injustice to Sheppard and Oldfield. T. M. Baldwin, Jr., superintendent of insurance, yesterday denied that the insurance bill introduced Tuesday by Senator Sheppard, Texas, and Representative Oldfield, Arkansas, is sponsored by the Ku Klux Klan. It originated, he said, with D. E. Bradshaw, general attorney for the Woodmen of the World. "It has nothing whatsoever to do, in any way, shape or form, with the Ku Klux Klan," Baldwin said, "and merely is a measure to take care of insurance concerns operating as cooperative non-profit life benefit associations, and does not interfere in any way with our fraternal insurance legislation, and, as far as I know, the Ku Klux Klan does not know anything about the measure."

Baldwin added that an injustice had been done Senator Sheppard and Representative Oldfield by publication of the belief that the bill would pave the way for the Klan to carry on its insurance operations in the District.

Bill Would Provide Quantico Barracks

(By the Associated Press.) Erection of permanent barracks at the marine corps base, at Quantico, Va., and construction of a bridge to connect Paris Island, South Carolina, with the mainland would be authorized under bills reported yesterday by the House naval committee. The bridge would be limited to a cost of $50,000, and would span Archer creek.

The measure proposing construction of the barracks has not been formally reported.

DAVEY TO PERSIST IN DONAHEY BOOM

Governor's Objections Fail to Halt Ohio House Member's Program.

The objection of Gov. Vic Donahey of Ohio to the launching of a Democratic presidential boom here tonight on his behalf by Representative Martin

L. Davey, of Ohio, has apparently fallen on deaf ears. The Ohio representative has not canceled his plans for the dinner which he will give in honor of Thomas E. Dye, Democratic State chairman of Ohio, with the idea of launching the Donahey "boom," despite the fact that the Ohio governor is said to have written Davey that he "is not a candidate and does not want any publicity."

Members of the Democratic congressional committee and Democratic members of the Ohio delegation are on the guest list. It is understood that another object of the dinner is to further the candidacy of Mr. Davey for the Ohio governorship.

Stirling to Command U. S. Scouting Fleet

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., has been ordered to the command of light cruiser division 3, scouting fleet, and will hoist his flag January 3, relinquishing his duty at the Washington navy yard, where he was captain of the yard and assistant superintendent of the naval gun factory. He will succeed Rear Admiral Arthur Willard, who has assumed command of the light cruiser force.

Navy to Move Arlington Radio Apparatus to Yard

Improvement in Modulation and Quality of Broadcast
Transmission Is Made Possible—Interference
Caused by Stations Located Near Set.

Transfer of the radio telephone transmission unit of the station NAA, Arlington radio station of the navy, to the Washington navy yard, was announced yesterday by Navy Department officials.

With announcement of plans, which it was said would increase materially the operating efficiency of the Arlington station, improvement in the modulation and quality of the broadcast transmission of the Arlington radio telephone transmitter is made possible.

The broadcast set at Arlington always has suffered from induced interference due to other radio transmitters located near it. It was explained, and efforts to eliminate code and other noises picked up by induction have been ineffectual.

Therefore, it has been decided to locate this set in the Washington navy yard, where it will not be in such close contact with other radio apparatus.

Work also has been started to improve the modulation of this set; a speech input equipment will be obtained soon for use with it, and the department hopes that the quality of broadcast will be improved.

The transmitter now at Arlington maintains its assigned frequency of 690 kilocycles, 454.5 meters, within very narrow limits, and the service bulletin issued by the Department of Commerce shows that during the last six months the frequency has been measured 31 times, and that the average deviation from the assigned frequency was zero per cent. For this reason this station has been selected by the bureau of standards as one of seven standard-frequency broadcasting stations in the United States.

The Arlington is the only radio broadcasting station maintained by the government for official use, and is operated by the Navy Department for use of any government activity or department which requires its service for government business.

Its program consists of weather reports at 10:05 a. m., 3:45 p. m. and 10:05 p. m.; daily time signals and lectures by the public health service, civil service commission and Department of Agriculture. In addition, it is used for special patriotic programs of semi-official nature, the subject-matter being passed on by the interdepartmental radio advisory committee.

REPUBLICANS JOIN FIGHT TO BAR SMITH

case, the Senate's attention was turned to the bribery charges against Senator Gould (Republican), Maine, when Chairman Goff of the elections subcommittee, appointed to investigate the new Maine senator, offered a resolution to authorize his committee to spend $100,000 and subpoena witnesses.

At the same time word came from Portland, Maine, through news dispatches, that Frederick W. Hinkley, State senator and counsel for Mr. Gould, had announced that he would challenge the Senate's jurisdiction over its membership and possibly appeal to the Supreme court.

This served to puzzle senators interested in the case. Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, declared it was "nonsense" to talk about carrying the case to the highest court when the Constitution empowers both the Senate and House as supreme judges of its members.

"It is perfectly absurd," asserted Senator Ashurst. "The Supreme court has nothing to do with it."

Appointment to Be Delayed.

Dwight, Ill., Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Senator-elect Frank L. Smith today verified information from Washington that Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, Republican Senate leader, had urged him in a telephone conversation not to accept appointment to the seat made vacant by the death of Senator William B. McKinley, Republican, but he declined to say whether it would weigh in his decision in the matter.

It is conceded by friends of Smith and Gov. Len Small that Smith may have the appointment if he desires it and Smith's frequent conversations with the governor have indicated his inclination to accept it.

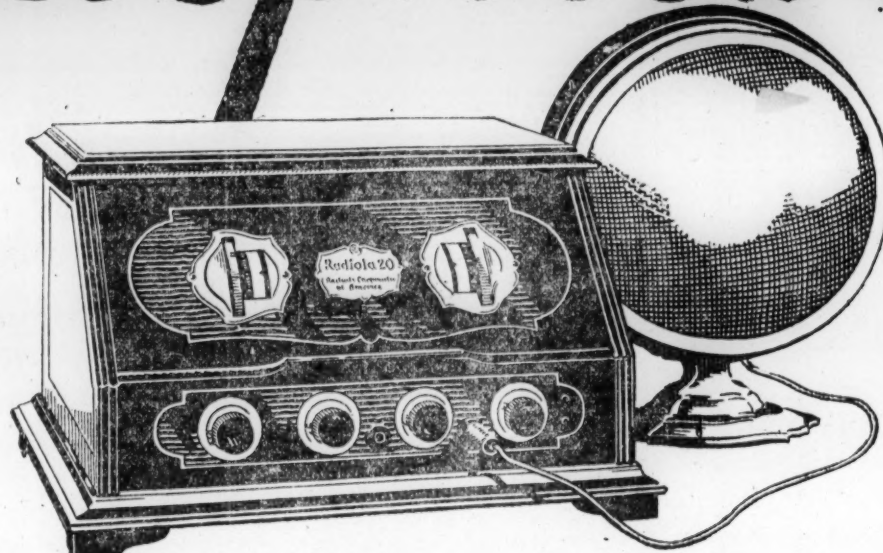

The outcome of the deliberations, Smith said, would hardly result in announcement of McKinley's successor "today or tomorrow." Delay in making them was regarded as an indication that the governor and the senator-elect are considering every angle of the situation, but there was no intimation that Smith has concluded to decline the seat, and he refused specifically today to say that he had taken such a course, or that he would take it.

in Musical Reproduction

The challenge has been taken up. People everywhere have been testing the Radiola 20, in comparison with other sets. Testing as the experts do... listening awhile to Radiola 20, and then with ear accustomed to its clear reproduction, switching over to another set. Then the difference shows up clearly. Thousands have made the test—and proved the point. And in thousands of homes everywhere, the continued test of use has shown up more good points.

It is not only in musical reproduction and clear speaking voice that Radiola 20 excels. It is twenty times as selective as the ordinary radio set. It is more sensitive than larger sets using a greater number of tubes, and reaches out far, for distant stations. It is simple to operate—a single control brings in near stations, program after program—and small verniers give sharp accuracy on distance tuning.

Radiola 20 is replacing thousands of antenna sets that have not been able to meet present day broadcast conditions. It has new principles—but it is no experiment. It is tried—perfected—proved. RADIO TUBES
C-11 and CX-12
for Compactness

These general purpose dry cell tubes, Types C-11 and CX-12, are especially suited to sets wherein filament battery space must be held to a minimum. They are excellent detectors and audio frequency amplifiers. The filament may be heated from a single dry cell. C-11 and CX-12 are identical except for their bases. CX-12 has the standard CX base; C-11 is for replacement purposes in the older types of dry cell receivers.

Consult your radio dealer. He will tell you the right combination of Cunningham Radio Tubes for your receiver.

CROWDED AUDITORIUM
HEARS JOHN MCCORMACK

Irish Tenor Wins Ovation
With Program of Classic and Popular Songs.

ENCORES ARE NUMEROUS

John McCormack, premier lyric tenor whose Irish love songs have endeared him to Americans, filled the new auditorium almost to capacity last night in his first concert here this season. Mr. McCormack appeared under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene, and his numbers were followed by a series of ovations.

It is hard to describe just what is the magic of John McCormack. Not alone is it to be found in his tender lilting tones, with just a touch of the brogue of his native Erin to make them irresistible, nor in his radiant, appealing personality. But the combination has made him the uncrowned king of song in America, and it is safe to say that outside of Caruso no man has ever rivalled him in the affections of this country.

Last night McCormack was in good voice, showing only here and there that the years have taken from this master of song in a lesser ease in his high register, and perhaps less power behind his vocalization. The old charm has not been diminished, however, in the least degree, and an eager audience implored him at the close of the program for more and more songs.

The program was opened with the "Gloze al canto mio," from Peri's "Euridice," which was given with a dignity of style and technical ability proving a master of his art. "Let Us But Rest" brought admiration for his clarity of diction and his utilization of breath reserve for the unusually long phrases of the composition.

Mr. McCormack's able accompanist, Edwin Schneider, who is a competent and soloist as well, was admirable in several piano selections after the tenor had given his second group of songs by Respighi, Bartok and Elgar.

Then came what the audience had been waiting for—Mr. McCormack singing Irish folk songs in his inimitable style and grace of delivery. In the two Hughes arrangements of "The Bard of Armagh" and "The Next Morning," the very soul of the Emerald Isle was infused, and the favorite ballad, "Kathleen Mavourneen," was a real treat.

The concluding ballads, "A Poor Man's Garden," by Kennedy, "Young Eyes," by Edwin Schneider, and the lovely "Calling Me Back to You," by Blanche S. Seaver, were quite on a par with the rest of the program.

There is no doubt that E. E. P.

is a John McCormack town.

Will Rogers Seeks
His Pay in Advance
on Pittsburgh Visit

Special to The Washington Post.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 15.—Miss Marion Talley wouldn't sing because she didn't get her three thousand. That just reminds me, Pittsburgh hasn't handed me my one hundred dollar bill for tonight yet, and there won't be "Ware vote-buying joke" told till I get the hundred in my pants. New Rochelle wants opera for the first time and Pittsburgh wants high brow humor for the first time, let 'em dig up for it.

Yours for a mixture of commerce and art,
WILL ROGERS
P. S.—One of our folks chorus girls got $50,000 out of Pittsburgh last week. I think Marion and I are working reasonable.

ALBANIA DENIES TREATY IS AIMED AT ANY STATE

Legation Says Pact With Italy
Contains No Secret Clause or Annex.

TO BE KEPT BY LEAGUE

(By the Associated Press.)
Declaring "disquieting comments of a certain foreign press" were based upon "mere conjecture," the Albanian government declared through its legation here yesterday that the recently signed Italo-Albanian treaty was a "treaty of peace and is not directed against any state."

The statement, the first authorized by Albania since the pact was signed, was made public by Faik Konitza, the Albanian minister.

The pact of friendship signed by Albania and Italy, it said, "can not and must not be considered otherwise than as a diplomatic act, which brings forth a new confirmation with regard to the independence, sovereignty, and the territorial integrity of Albania."

"Far from favoring any interference whatever on the part of Italy with the external and internal affairs of Albania, far from substituting the great neighboring power to the role of international guarantor that the high institution of Geneva assures to all its members—the Albanian-Italian treaty, which is also a treaty of arbitration, is limited only by the principles of the covenant of the League of Nations, which will be the keeper of this treaty and thereby the authority of the league is increased in the international field. This pact contains no secret clause or annex, a thing which would be in flagrant contradiction to the principles upon which it is based."

SECRETARY OF WAR
FACES COURT FIGHT

Nannie L. King to Make Her
Third Effort to Regain Clerkship Today.

Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War, who has twice been the victor in a mandamus action brought against him by Miss Nannie L. King, former War Department clerk, to compel him to re-instate her, will have a third fight on his hands tomorrow in circuit court, when a replication filed by Miss King will be presented to Justice Siddons in circuit court.

At the same time Assistant District Attorney Leo A. Rover, counsel for Mr. Davis, will present a motion for judgment on the pleadings filed thus far. Deficiency of competency twice failed to secure a writ of mandamus. Miss King incorporated in her replication allegations concerning alleged graft, false statements and conspiracy in connection with her discharge as a surplus employee from the service on February 22, 1920. The Secretary of War will demur to the replication because if he did, he would be admitting, when a replication of argument, that the charges were true. Miss King's two failures were due to the fact that she waived over six years to appeal to the courts for relief.

Spinsters Favored

By London Widowers

London, Dec. 15 (By A. P.).—Widowers prefer spinsters when remarrying. It is revealed in matrimonial statistics published by the London county council.

The London marriage records show, says the booklets, that during the last recorded year there were nearly twice as many widowers who took single women as life partners as compared with those who wed widows. The difference between the number of widows who married widowers and those who wed bachelors was very small.

CATCHINGS IS PRESIDENT OF WELFARE FOUNDATION

Incorporators and Directors of National Association Hold
First Election.

WILL ADMINISTER FUNDS

Benjamin Catchings was named president of the National Welfare Foundation association at a meeting of the incorporators and directors of the association in the Southern building yesterday.

Frederic A. Delano was named vice president; Col. Arthur O'Brien, vice president; Edward A. Harriman, treasurer; John F. Bethune, secretary, and Guilford S. Jameson, assistant secretary. The officers were appointed by the directors who were elected by the incorporators. Directors of the organization elected yesterday were Delano, O'Brien, Jefferson Myers, Dr. John H. Gray, Harriman, Bethune and Catchings.

The association was founded to establish and maintain suitable public institutions which can be given power to modify original objects of trusts, funds and foundations when they become out of date, it was explained. Frozen endowments are of little or no benefit, it was said.

The contemplated committees may also be vested with discretionary power to direct the expenditure of income intended for public welfare objects and the association is to aid existing community foundations and do what it can to facilitate the community foundation movement, it was said.

The primary purpose of the new organization is to "encourage wise public giving by maintaining efficient machinery for the handling of public gifts, the association said.

TRADING EXPECTED TO END FILIBUSTER ON WATERWAY BILL

Senate Leaders Are Confident Obstructionists Can Be Brought to Compromise.

PRESENT OPPOSITION ABLE TO BLOCK VOTE

Illinois River Project Stirs Senators Prepared to Offer 400 Amendments.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

The "greatest deliberative body in the world," more often known as the Senate, is viewing with considerable equanimity the first filibuster of the present session, directed against that ancient "enemy," the rivers and harbors bill, and although its membership seemed yesterday to be concerned with other obstructive problems yet to come, the initial filibuster caused no great concern.

The elements necessary to "talk the bill to death" were present, a poll revealed, since as the bill stands now at least twenty senators are opposed to it; but senatorial cynics declare that there is enough material for "log-rolling" in the measure to satisfy all but a half dozen or so of the members who are now vigorous in their denunciation and eager to follow Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, who leads the effort to kill the measure.

The present rivers and harbors bill contains no provisions for the drilling of wells to create a river which might afterward be made navigable, as Senate historians say once was the case, but as it now stands it does contain several controversial subjects on which there must be compromises.

Illinois Project Opposed.

The majority of the foes of the bill are waiting for their particular compromise to come along. A group of ten senators from the lake States of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, are opposed to the Illinois river project, to clear to Chicago, for fear that the level of the Great Lakes will be lowered, but they probably will be appeased through the insertion of a clause providing that no project shall be undertaken which would lower the lakes' present level.

The Missouri, Kansas and Iowa senators are aroused over the method selected for the improvement of the upper Missouri. The bill provides for the expenditures of certain government funds provided that the inhabitants along the river provide their share.

Division of cost after this manner is not general to the bill nor has it been used in previous instances. Those working for the bill are confident that when this feature has been amended the bill will no longer appear iniquitous to the Missouri, Kansas and Iowa members.

There is finally, as a bone of contention, the purchase of the Cape Cod canal, which is regarded as an unsound project by such ancient foes of rivers and harbors "pork" as Senator William H. King, of Utah, and Senators George W. Norris, and Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska.

400 Amendments Possible.

Opponents of the bill as a whole, and there may be one or two others in addition to King, Smoot, Willis, Norris and Howell, fail to see any chance of sidetracking the bill. The measure is before the Senate under an agreement to limit debate after December 20 to 1 hour upon the bill and 30 minutes on any amendment. The following day it has been agreed that "no Senator shall speak more than once or longer than 15 minutes on the bill or any amendment."

There has been in the last few days much conversation on the extent of the filibuster even with these limiting provisions. A meeting of the Great Lakes opponents of the Illinois river project is said to have agreed to the introduction of 400 amendments, each of which could be discussed for fifteen minutes each by any one of the ten senators who come from this section of the country. This move of itself, if carried out, would result in about 1,000 hours of conversation.

Trading Is Looked For.

The Missouri opposition embraces such masters of the filibuster as Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, while the general opposition includes Senator King, who in previous years aided the then Senator Kenyon in staging a two-man filibuster of no mean proportions, against rivers and harbors bills.

The very strength of the filibuster in its present stages is, Senate leaders say, an indication that it has been organized more for trading purposes than for any actual use against the bill.

In the closing stages there will remain probably half a dozen senators, some of them from States where navigable waters are unknown, still opposed to the bill, but with the limitation on the debate proponents of the measure are sure it will pass.

As one cynical senator described the venture yesterday in a paraphrase, the situation may now be said to consist of: "Twenty little senators filibustering on a bill, waiting for their compromises to come over the hill."

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist—Adv.

MAJ. HESSE MOVES TO CURB BEGGARS AND UNTAGGED DOGS

Declares Canine Population Is Growing, While License Receipts Show Decrease.

ORDERS RIGID ACTION AGAINST MENDICANTS

Precinct Commanders Asked to Submit Reports on Public Hack Stands.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, had an unusually busy day yesterday. He issued four general orders, initiating law enforcement drives against beggars and unlicensed dogs, calling for information where to locate additional public hack stands and transferring three patrolmen.

As to beggars, it was stated to be of common knowledge that many were operating in public places, contrary to police regulations, and it was directed that the rule against mendicants be rigidly enforced.

Maj. Hesse told the members of his department that whereas the dog population was noticeably increased, revenue from dog licenses was falling off 1,200 licenses having lapsed within a year. Policemen were ordered to spot all unlicensed dogs and correct the condition.

Asks Hack Stand Reports

Taking cognizance of recent court decisions that public vehicles must be confined to established stands and stating that it had become incumbent on the commissioners therefore to provide more stands, Maj. Hesse told all police station commanding officers to make a survey and report (1) necessity in their respective areas for hacking service; (2) effect on traffic conditions of proposed location of stands; (3) accessibility of public to proposed stands; (4) telephone facilities contiguous to all proposed stands; and (5) number of vehicles each stand should accommodate. The commanding officers will first propose stands and then report.

Private Harry W. Pickles was relieved from motorcycle duty in the Thirtieth precinct and sent to do foot duty in the Twelfth. Private George W. Fainault was transferred from foot in the Twelfth to motorcycle patrol in the Thirtieth precinct. Private Walter B. Clark was transferred from the Fifth to the Eighth precinct, remaining as foot.

Hebrew Charities Benefit.

The Jewish Foster Home is bequeathed $2,000 according to the will of Edward A. Bachrach, filed yesterday in probate court. The money is given as a memorial to the father and sister of the testator. A similar amount is given to the Hebrew Home for the Aged in memory of the father and brother of the testator. Miriam F. Skirball and Ruth Fane, cousins of the testator, are each given $1,000. Lena I. Fane, another cousin, is given the household effects, and the balance of the estate is devoted to Harry Fane. The Second National Bank is executor.

THE POST HOUSEKEEPER

It is merely a matter of taste, O. L., whether you use on your table a center decoration of glass, silver or china. It depends, too, somewhat upon the materials that are at hand, rather than on the prevailing mode. You neglected to tell me whether or not you are about to buy table accessories—which would have assisted in the answer that you are receiving "through the column"—but we trust that this will meet with your needs. Silver is always delightful, and the candlesticks may be of this material even in event it is necessary to use a glass dish for your floral effect. Glass candlesticks may be used with a glass centerpiece—and this material is most popular at the present time—or china may be used for both candlesticks and bowl. It is smart now to have the objects match rather than contrast, and it is considered the thing, also, to have delicately tinted sets that blend nicely with the color scheme of the room and harmonize with the china for the table. If you are buying, it would be well to look at the assortment of glass sets that are to be found, for they quite likely will appeal to you. As to the arrangement for a semi-formal luncheon, the table is arranged much as for the formal breakfast, for which you have previously received information. The linen may be of a more handsome kind, and candles may be added and lighted. Salted nuts may be placed on the table, and dainty candies, these arranged partly between the centerpiece and the setting of the places that are at the ends of the table. Lace paper doilies should be under the centerpieces, and on which they are placed, to prevent their sticking, and the doily gives an added attractiveness of appearance. They cost but a few cents and come by the dozen in packages, and are more suitable than their linen cousins. The nuts may be placed in small receptacles at the individual places. Keep the appointments of the table simple, remembering that in entertaining, as in all other things, there is an elegance in simplicity that exceeds any amount of ornate striving to do a thing handsomely. Let the linen be splendid but simple. Let the china be simple—inexpensive, if need be—but in a plainness of good taste rather than any attempt to be elaborate. Put as few things on the table as possible, and light the candles to add to the effect of your luncheon with their soft flickering glow. smiled at your contempt of candle-light in "broad daylight." What matter—as we are not counting the candles an extravagance. It is the effort we strive to accomplish, and in so doing the literal interpretation of not needing with the skin a little longer in the water and then strain it off into a separate dish. Break or chop the meat into small pieces and then add it to the liquor in which it was cooked—adding salt and pepper to taste. Place evenly in a mold, but do not attempt to press as the broth will jelly, holding the least mind my handing it on. We planned a dinner for her. She sent no envelope for her information and we assumed that the answer was to go forth in the usual fashion. This was some months ago. We merely suggested the ways and means in the paper and telephoned her the food details that we felt would meet her requirements. All went well—the dinner came off with success, guest remarked that something or other was this or that—and the guest of honor at once remarked that the whole smacked of success. The specifications that had recently appeared in the housekeepers' column. She accused her hostess—who had been to a luncheon at her house arranged with the same assistance—and I judge much amusement prevailed. Stamped envelopes are small things, but it is necessary that we have one or the answer in most cases goes out through the column. Often it is requested that the reader be answered in this manner. Sometimes it boomerangs. It is unfortunate, for the Housekeeper has not the least desire to be recognized at any of these parties as the silent contributor. I should suggest that if the hostesses who come to the department for assistance wish to seem, as they should, as the originator of their entertainments, they send me an envelope and avoid all chance of the home service department creeping into the atmosphere.

Two menus for today, and a number of recipes. Soon we shall be about the business of recipes for Christmas, but it will be well to get the business of gifts out of the way first, will it not?

Cut a well cleaned chicken into small pieces and boil until thoroughly tender in just sufficient salted water to cover. Take up and remove the skin and then remove all the meat from the bones. Break the bones and boil them with the skin a little longer in the water and then strain it off into a separate dish. Break or chop the meat into small pieces and then add it to the liquor in which it was cooked—adding salt and pepper to taste. Place evenly in a mold, but do not attempt to press as the broth will jelly, holding the meat together in a solid loaf. Chill and serve garnished with parsley.

CREAM PIE.
Bring a pint of sweet milk to a scalding point and add a lump of butter the size of an egg. Beat the yolks of two eggs until they are thick and lemon colored and add to them two table-spoonfuls of cornstarch, a cup of sugar, a little cold milk to thin and add the whole to the hot milk gradually. Cook in a double boiler until thick and remove from the fire. Cool thoroughly and flavor to taste with vanilla. Turn into a previously baked crust and add meringue after our own recipe. Brown slightly in the oven, under the flame if possible rather than in the top part, watching it every moment. It is not safe to put meringue in to brown and turn one's back to it. It cooks in a very few moments and is apt to scorch and ruin the appearance of the pie.

CREAMED SALMON.
Break into large flakes a can of best red salmon. Squeeze over it the juice of a half lemon. Rub together one table-spoonful of butter and a table-spoonful of flour. Put over a low flame and add a cup of hot milk. Add the milk gradually and cook until thickened. Add the salmon and let it remain on the fire only long enough to thoroughly heat it. Season. Serve garnished with minced parsley and dotted over with small pieces of butter the size of a pea. It may be sprinkled on the top for color.

For the cheese biscuit substitute a table-spoonful of grated American cheese for the bit of sugar for which the recipe calls. They are baked and made in the same manner and will be very pleasing. I feel sure.

Sally Lunn.
Three eggs
Half cup sugar
Four cups flour
Four table-spoonfuls baking powder
Quarter table-spoonful salt
Two cups milk
One table-spoonful butter
Beat the eggs and add the sugar gradually, and then to them add the flour with which has been sifted the baking powder. Warm the butter with the milk and stir into the first mixture, continuing to stir until the mixture is smooth. Pour into a buttered round pan and bake for a half hour in a moderate oven. Sugar may be sprinkled over the top before it goes into the oven, care being exercised that not too much be used.

Marguerites.
To one cup of sugar add a fourth cup of sweet cream, a fourth cup chopped walnuts and the white of an egg that has been beaten stiff. Drop a small amount of this mixture in the middle of a square saltine cracker, place in the oven and brown slightly, being careful not to burn. A little practice or experience will be needed in discovering how much mixture to put on the cracker. Too much will run off the sides and produce a gooey mass. Too little will spread out and be too thin. The mixture puffs up and is a most delicious bit of sweet to serve with a dessert.

Parent-Teacher Group to Meet.
The Randle Highlands-Orr Parent-Teacher association will hold a meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Orr school. Fathers have been especially invited to attend. Miss Jessie LaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools, will speak on the intelligence tests.

"Good old Cranberry Time"
TIME of good living. Your family is missing something if you do not serve on your table some of the many delicacies made from cranberries.

NEW JERSEY CRANBERRIES
Did you know that the finely flavored New Jersey cranberries are just as delicious with beef, lamb, pork or veal as they are with turkey? Try cranberry sauce with your next roast and see. Then you'll get the habit. All your good meats will taste better.

Cranberry Jelly
2 qts. cranberries, 1 qt. water, granulated sugar—Cook the cranberries and water together until the fruit is tender; strain through a jelly bag; measure the juice, and to each pint add three-fourths pound of granulated sugar. Heat until the sugar is dissolved, but do not boil. Pour into jelly glasses and coat with paraffine wax.

Don't wait till turkey time. The very choicest are gathered, branded and distributed over this signature.

New York, Dec. 15. Stocks were

Although the turnover was consider-day before that of yesterday. After a strong opening, U. S. Steel, some of the railroads and industrials moved forward in the morning, bringing a continuation of yesterday's business. The market was for midday, however, a strong selling force got under way in practically all divisions of the list, causing a large number of stocks to drop below the opening level.

After a period of seesawing, with prices moving in a rather bored manner, the announcement that the call for the 4½ per cent coupon bonds was to 4½ per cent caused a strong resumption of the buying movement. The definite trend was established, the day's business resulted in more net gains than losses, and the exchange, cotton and grain were dull.

Much of the early strength in stocks was due to the publication of a long report by the Federal Reserve Board, including one of 30 cents a share on the common stock by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The report, which reported few important changes in actual operations, but were encouraging.

United States Steel common held its place as the market leader, being in steady demand throughout. On a basis of 1934, the stock was up 10% from a low of 1934 to 1934 and closed at 144%. Some profit taking was evident in the afternoon, but the independent stocks ranged narrowly.

Atchafalaya, making a new high at 1934, was the most conspicuous among the independent stocks. The stock was made as large or larger gains. Among them were Delaware & Hudson, up 24%; Erie, up 1%; Erie first preferred, up 2%; Erie second preferred, up 2%; Louis & Western, 4%; and gains from 1/2 fraction to 2 points in many others.

By the close of the day, the market had diminished greatly during the night. General Motors moved apathetically and closed at the opening price. The stock of the company, which had held 1 1/2% gain, while most of the other members of the group lost fractions of a point.

Atlantic Refining led an advance among the oil stocks in the early session and ended with a net gain of 4 1/2%. The stock of the company, which had held 2 points net higher. The other members of the group lost most of their gains in the midday selling movement.

Among other stocks which were active and higher in the early trading, the following were noted: American Lumber, opening prices were Baldwin, Abitibi, Air Reduction, American Lined, Case Chemical, Commercial Solvent B, Continental, Borden, American Cyanamid, Cigar, South Port Rican Sugar and many others.

Stocks which moved up well through the selling movement and closed with net gains of 1% to 3% were American Lumber, American Lined, General Electric, International Harvester, Macy, Minat Sugar, Peoples Gas and others. In the early trading, the market advanced to 165 1/2 a new all-time record.

The report that President Underwood, of the Erie, would give way at the first of the year to a man of Van Dine's caliber was a signal for the spectacular upturn in Erie preferred stock and the Erie General funds and convertible Ds were in good demand. The Erie common stock and change market displayed little activity. Sterling advanced to 64.85; Erie common advanced to 165.00 and change was firm.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York Dec 15 (By A. P.). The cotton market was a little more active today than yesterday. January contracts advancing to 12.27, or 25 points net higher and 64 points above the previous close. The market closed at 12.26, the general market for the firm at an advance of 25 to 26 points.

The October 15 to 20 points on covering, and New Orleans buying, which appeared to have been the cause of the advance. Reports from the south and relatively steady Liverpool cables. Initial prices were 12.25 to 12.26, with little selling, but offerings were absorbed on the market and the market soon steadied up again.

Continued absence of Southern hedgers, and the volume of the volume appeared to make a bullish impression on the market. The market was on a steadier basis on the better grades in some of the Southern markets. There was a general buying in volume, but evidence of a further trade buying was reported.

On the afternoon advance from 26.78 to 27.00 and May to 127.8, net gains of about 27 to 28 cents were made since the decline which followed the surge on the government crop report was not so severe as had been expected. Some of the small Southern offerings were attracted partly by recent unfavorable weather in the South, which is supposed to have slowed up picking.

Aside from that, there was support from the fact that the market would earlier in the month in anticipation of preholiday liquidation of spot cotton. The market also has been helped no great amount of "Christmas" cotton thus far had come upon the market.

The Liverpool market has been absorbing hedges in the Liverpool market, but it is felt that the cloth demand was slow in developing at Manchester.

For the day were 28.78, making 4,704,488 so far this season. Receipts, 37,201 U. S. port stocks, 3,049,066.

Critics by Supervisors Provided in Proposed Measure of Chamber.

LAW FOR VIOLATION

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
CLARENCE RICHARDS, CLERK.
Tol., Clar. 209. (Clarendon, Va.)

Unanimous approval was given to the proposed ordinance as drawn by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce last night. President Clarence Richards presided at the meeting. The committee was authorized by the board of supervisors to proceed at once and have the proposed ordinance presented to the board of supervisors and urge its passage.

The ordinance provides that no person or any person, firm or corporation shall erect or maintain advertising signs or billboards in Arlington county unless a permit has been granted by the supervisors; that applications for permits may be presented in writing, but no permit shall be issued until the fee therefor has been paid, and that the fee for a permit for signs, billboards or to paint signs shall be $5, to be paid when the application is made, and if rejected, corrected. There shall be an annual license charged at the rate of $1 for each sign or billboard of advertising space, payable in advance.

The ordinance provides that signs advertising goods manufactured or produced outside the county, except from the operation of this ordinance, their signs not included are travel agencies, real estate agents, and signs at data and signs of purely noncommercial nature.

The ordinance further provides that no person without a permit, and the failure of owner to obtain a license to pay the annual fee provided with the ordinance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $25, and each day that such sign is maintained in place shall constitute a separate offense.

That the location of Mount Vernon boulevard means much to the future development of the county, and indicated by much discussion by members of the board of directors of the county, it was decided to have the proposed location along the river bank.

"The locating of the boulevard along the river shore will take thousands of acres of land, and also will ruin any possible industrial development," declared one of the delegates, who was referred to the committee on internal county and road improvements of which Sinclair is chairman.

From the report of the secretary of the chamber indications are that the board of supervisors will not have concluded by December 31.

With the reports that plans are being considered by the board of supervisors of Arlington county to purchase the land between the county departments, early in January, consideration should be given to the employing of two experienced men in the engineering department, and one in the electrical department already in the county as the view as expressed yesterday by the board of supervisors, that the highway department. "There are now in the county six pumps and one engine, and it is estimated that needed most is paid men in each of the rehouses, one day and one night man," he said.

With the Arlington County Civic Federation rapidly becoming an organization, the proposed location of the road and organization in the county and identifying its identity as a civic body, the board of supervisors, at its meeting last night, unanimously passed the following motion as offered by J. L. Lundquist, president of the Arlington Park vote only for delegates representing civic organizations and to oppose the election of delegates at large.

There are some sections in the county presented by three delegates from the Arlington Park area, and the work that the federation first set out to accomplish can not be accomplished by the present method of electing delegates from every section of the county, was the opinion voiced by many members of the association.

Plans for erection of street signs and the locating of street lights in Aurora were discussed by the board of supervisors at the monthly meeting of the Aurora Heights Citizens association, held last night. President L. R. Price presided.

The president appointed a committee composed of J. L. Lundquist, chairman; Hugh McCaffrey and Frank Scott, with instructions to make a survey of the community and report at the next meeting.

Bids for erection of the Arlington branch of the People's State Bank of Maryland will be opened today at 9 o'clock at the Cherrystone bank.

A suit for a divorce was filed in the circuit court yesterday by Mrs. May Lucille Jannett Goldborough against James Goldborough.

Charged with reckless driving, M. A. Carter, forfeited $15 in Arlington county police court yesterday.

At a meeting of the Potomac River department held in Firemen's hall last night, the board of directors elected J. L. Lundquist president to represent the department in the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's association.

The annual turkey dinner given last night by the women of the Clarendon chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star had more than 200 persons. Following the dinner a bazaar was held.

The supervisors of Arlington county met in for much criticism last night. It was pointed out that the county association when it became known at the board has granted permission for the management of Columbia Gardens cemetery.

Efforts will be made by the association to have the board rescind its action regarding the cemetery, and it was pointed out. It was pointed out that the engagement of the cemetery would be a detriment to the future development of the community.

FIGHT ON PROPOSED TERMINALS BY BUS LINES IS INDICATED

Red Star and A. B. & W. Routes Challenge Right of Utilities Commission.

ACCIDENT REDUCTION IS SEEN BY ELDRIDGE

Counsel of Motor Concern Will File Briefs Outlining All Objections.

Developments at a public hearing before the public utilities commission yesterday indicated that interstate motor-bus companies operating bus lines into Washington are prepared to make a determined resistance to being forced to operate terminals at which to ton line appeared and challenged the commission's right to enter the proposed order. They did not threaten court fight to test such an order's validity, if passed, but their attitude seemed to be that they would carry the fight into the courts if necessary.

The commission heard two witnesses

The first was E. J. Milligan, chief clerk of the commission's staff. He said that such terminals, if provided, with space therein to post schedules of rates and time tables, would relieve his office of the necessity of answering many tele-

Would Reduce Accidents.
Director of Traffic M. O. Eldridge said such terminals would be desirable to reduce traffic accidents. He said they had been operated successfully in several cities, notably Indianapolis, Ind.

Upon cross-examination by the attorneys, Eldridge admitted he did not know whether there were such terminals in other large cities named, whether such terminals had been successful financially. The commission gave the lawyers time to file briefs outlining their objections. Lieut. Col.

Franklin Bell, chairman of the commission, said the question of legal authority, with the briefs, would be submitted to Corporation Counsel Francis Stephens for advice.
